"COAL FRAUDS COST $25,000," SAYS SUGHRUE

Panic in City Hall Over Disclosures by the Finance Commission Inquiry—Mayor Declares He Will Begin Suits for Reimbursement—Commission in Conference To-day.

Arraigning officials at City Hall for their failure to protect the interests of the city and permitting fraud to be perpetrated through gross negligence, Attorney Michael J. Sughrue points out to the Finance Commission that $25,000 was lost to the city on less than 25,000 tons of coal. The disclosures have caused a panic at City Hall.

Mayor Fitzgerald says he has already taken steps to institute suits in behalf of the city to recover from the coal companies for the amount that was overpaid for coal of an inferior grade than was called for in the contracts.

It was the intention of the Finance Commission to-day to hold an executive session at the School Committee rooms, but for some unexplained reason they gathered at the commission's rooms in the Tremont building.

COMMISSIONERS IN SESSION.

Chairman Nathan Matthews told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter that until they had gone through with the evidence already gathered and had consulted with Attorney Sughrue that they could not tell what the next move of the commission would be.

H. Klous, agent of the W. K. Niver Coal Company, whose presence was desired by the commission at the public hearings, and who could not be located, was among others arraigned by Attorney Sughrue in his statement. Klous is not at his home in Brookline, and members of his family profess not to know where he is. He was last heard of at the Murray Hill Hotel in New York last Thursday.

LAYS FRAUD AT FITZ'S DOOR.

It is the contention of Attorney Sughrue that much has been proved to show indifference, connivance and fraud in connection with the coal contracts. The attorney who conducted the probe for the commission says:

The award of the contract by the Superintendent of Supplies and the approval by the Mayor were not inadvertent acts, but were done deliberately after warnings.

"The city was defrauded in the exact manner against which the Mayor and Superintendent of Supplies had been warned," was another fact the inquisitor laid before the commission for its serious consideration.

SCORES CITY OFFICIALS.

Attorney Sughrue again pointed out that the substitution of an inferior grade of coal than that for which the city had contracted and for which it paid was "due to or rendered possible by the indifference or connivance of the city officials."

"It was false and fraudulent competition," he said again referring to another contract for coal.

Mr. Sughrue wound up his statement with these words:

"The only possible result of this abandonment of honest competition has been shown by the evidence to be indifference, gross negligence and fraud."

MAYOR DODGES BLAME.

Before the attorney for the finance commission had pointed out these things, Mayor Fitzgerald gave out a statement in which he says these things:

"In common with our citizens generally I am astonished at the evidence, apparently conclusive, of bare-faced frauds perpetrated by certain coal dealers upon the city.

"I confess my surprise at learning that any coal dealer should have been bold enough to make out false bills of lading as a means of defrauding the city treasury."

The Mayor says that he is satisfied that enough evidence has been brought out to warrant the city bringing suit to recover overpayments for coal. He lays the whole fault on the fact that his administration has inherited the methods handed down by its predecessors.

NOW PROMISES REFORM.

As a result of the revelations made to the finance commission the Mayor promises that all this will now be changed, and he is about to instruct the heads of departments.

GRAND JURY INDICTS CLARK IN BRIBE CASE

FORMER BUILDING INSPECTOR ACCUSED OF "ACCEPTING A GRATUITY."

The Grand Jury struck a blow at City Hall graft to-day when it indicted Buildings Inspector John P. Clark on the charge of soliciting a bribe. The indicting body accused Clark in a report to Judge De Courcey in the Superior Criminal Court of "requesting and accepting a gratuity."

The indictment is the result of an investigation begun by District Attorney John B. Moran several weeks ago. Clark was arrested by Police Inspectors McGarr and Armstrong in a building on Phillips street, in the West End, which was being remodelled.

The detectives, who were hidden there, claim to have seen Clark accept the money. No sooner, they say, had he pocketed it than they sprang from their place of concealment. It is claimed that when he faced District Attorney Moran, the prisoner took three marked bills from his pocket of his own accord.

Clark was suspended by Building Commissioner Rooney and held by a lower court in $5,000 for Grand Jury action.

He is a prominent political friend of Mayor Fitzgerald, being treasurer of the John F. Fitzgerald Club of Ward 24.

The police say they knew of Clark's getting two bribes for a total amount of $400 during last month.

In all the Grand Jury found sixty-one indictments and fifteen "no" bills. Among the "no" bills returned was one against Dr. William H. Bailey, of No. 4 Putnam street, Somerville, charged with illegally treating Margaret Russell, a nineteen-year-old girl, living at No. 25 Bowdoin street, West End, Boston. Dr. Bailey had previously been convicted by a Suffolk County jury for malpractice. He was sentenced by Judge Schofield on August 21 to from three to five years in Charlestown State Prison.

Judge De Courcey, after hearing the report of the Grand Jury, excused the members until next Monday morning, at 10 o'clock, when, he said, he understood they had other matters to consider.

Among the cases still under investigation by the Grand Jury is the charge that city employes were coerced in the recent election to vote for Senator Edward J. Dixon.

ROOT IN FINE TRIM, FINISHES AT MULDOON'S

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Elihu Root completed his training to-day for the annual international diplomacy bout at Washington this Winter, and his trainer, "Billy" Muldoon, announced in the good old prize ring fashion that he was "in better condition than ever before."

Secretary Root, who was somewhat weakened last Spring and Summer, was put through a stiff course by Muldoon, and came out of it in fine trim.

He was looking like a new man to-day. In the last few days he had gone through a rigorous schedule with the ease that comes only after hard training. He was bronzed and in fine fettle.

SEE PHANTOM CITY IN SKY OFF SHOALS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 7.—A wonderful clear mirage was seen yesterday lying low in the sky between this city and Isles of Shoals. The spectacle showed in clear details a village, forest and lake, the houses being very plain, and a church conspicuous among them.

It was seen by residents of this city and along Rye Beach.

Belmont Driver Unconscious from Blow;
ROBBED IN HOLD-UP

Armed Footpads Halt Teamster on Way to Boston With Garden Truck.

Jumping from his wagon at the command of a highwayman who had him covered with a revolver, Joseph Flagg, thirty, a teamster for Charles H. Fiade, a wealthy Belmont market gardener, was struck down from behind by a second robber and after being relieved of $16 and a gold watch, was left unconscious on the roadside in front of the Oakley Country Club, Belmont street, Belmont, shortly after 3 o'clock this morning.

Although the district where the footpads worked is rather thickly populated, Flagg lay unconscious in the middle of the road for fully a half hour. When the highwaymen had completed their work of searching Flagg's clothes, they started the horse away.

Finds Driver Unconscious.

Half an hour later a milkman found the horse wandering about without a driver. Following the freshly-made wheel tracks, he stumbled across the unconscious form of the driver, whom he soon revived.

Although weak from the force of the blow that rendered him unconscious, Flagg insisted upon driving his wagon to the Boston market. While passing through Cambridge he notified the University City authorities, who sent word to Chief of Police Jeremiah Ryan of Belmont.

It was pitch dark when Flagg was held up and robbed, and this, with the fact that he was struck down so suddenly, made it impossible that the highwaymen were young and powerful fellows.

"Just before I reached the Oakley Club," said Flagg, "my horse suddenly stopped. The next instant I could see the flash of the nickel-plated revolver, and then the man behind the gun commanded me to get down from the wagon or he would shoot.

"Throw Up Your Hands."

Robbed of Money and Gold Watch; Found Senseless on Roadside.

"'Now, throw your hands up,' said the robber, when I landed on the road. The next instant I was hit with terrific force over the head by some one behind. That's all I remember until I came to with a milkman bending over me, dashing water into my face.

"No, I would not know the men if I saw them again. It was too dark to get a good look at either of them. I should say that they were young, powerful fellows."

The highwaymen took $16, a gold watch and two keys from Flagg's pocket.

JOHN D. AGAIN AT NO. 26 BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—For the first time since 1899 John D. Rockefeller has during the week paid several visits to his office at No. 26 Broadway. He has maintained a handsome suite of offices on the fourteenth floor of the Standard Oil building ever since he retired from the active management of the company eight years ago, but only his secretaries have occupied them.

SENTENCE 2 REBELS TO DIE; 7 TO MINES

KIEV, Russia, Sept. 7.—A court-martial has sentenced the mutineers of the Twenty-first Battalion of Sappers, who, June 17, killed the commander of the Third Company and were finally subdued by five battalions of loyal troops. Two of the prisoners were condemned to death, seven were sentenced to imprisonment in the mines and eighteen received lighter punishments.

CITY DEFRAUDED, DECLARES SUGHRUE

This is the powerful arraignment by Attorney Michael J. Sughrue of the coal purchasing methods of city officials:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen—In response to your request for a summary of what I contend the evidence introduced at these public hearings shows, I submit the following statement of the main facts thus far brought out.

"With reference to the Hatfield & Hilles

ATLANTIC FLEET SHIPS AT PROVINCETOWN

By Long Distance Telephone.

PROVINCETOWN, Sept. 7.—The flagship Connecticut, with Admiral Robley D. Evans on board, and six other vessels of the Atlantic squadron cast anchor in the harbor to-day, where they will later be joined by the other squadrons of the fleet, which will assemble here preparatory to sailing around Cape Horn for the Pacific manoeuvres.

The Kansas, Virginia, Louisiana, New Jersey, Yankton, Gloucester, and two colliers comprise the initial arrival for the grand assemblage, and when all have been assembled there will be a formidable array of sixty vessels, comprising the cream of the United States Navy.

Another squadron of eight ships, under the command of Rear-Admiral Charles H. Davis, is anchored off Rockport. The ships in this squadron are the Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge, Kentucky, Ohio, Maine, Missouri and Minnesota. It is the second time that the warships have anchored off Rockport, and already thousands are beginning to pour into the little town to inspect the warships, and the streets have taken on a holiday appearance. The squadron will join the main body some time next week.

Target practice with the big guns fired while the ships are at full speed will be held all next week.

Sughrue Puts Blame for City Coal Frauds at Door of Mayor Fitz

FINANCE COMMISSION HOLDS SECRET SESSION TO-DAY, BUT MAKES NO STATEMENT.

contract in October, 1906, the superintendent of the supply department called for bids on a contract for 10,000 tons of bituminous coal for use at the pumping station. Two well-known high-grade steam coals were specified in the advertisement, namely, George's Creek Big Vein and New River. The former is mined in Allegheny County, Maryland, and the latter in West Virginia.

Fraudulent Competition.

"Many bids were received for both these coals lower than Hatfield & Hilles's bid, which was $3.85 for New River coal. They made no bid for George's Creek Big Vein coal, and there were several bids from large and entirely responsible coal dealers for either New River or George's Creek Big Vein coal at prices ranging from $3.68 to $3.82.

"Hatfield & Hilles also bid $3.74 for a grade of coal not specified in the advertisement and not known to the local trade. This coal, called Buffalo Creek, was not responsive to the advertisement, and as a matter of fact, none of it was called for by the city or delivered by the contractor.

"The superintendent of supplies was unable to give any intelligent reason for this discrimination; and no honest explanation can be given for awarding this contract to Hatfield & Hilles. It was a false and fraudulent competition.

"The award of this contract by the superintendent of supplies and the approval in writing by the Mayor were not inadvertent acts, but were done deliberately after a warning in the shape of a letter from one of the competitors, expressing the hope that the city's advertisement meant what it said, and that a literal compliance with its terms would be exacted.

"Immediately after the contract was awarded, this competitor wrote another letter to the superintendent of supplies and the Mayor, protesting against the award and calling attention to the possibility that a different and inferior coal would be substituted in the deliveries.

"In the execution of this contract thus procured by Hatfield & Hilles by favor the city was defrauded in the exact manner against which the Mayor and Superintendent of Supplies had been warned, namely, by the substitution of a different and inferior grade of coal than that called for by the contract.

"This result was due to or rendered possible by the indifference or connivance of the city officials.

"All the coal delivered under the contract was billed, received and paid for as New River, although in fact by far the greater part of it was not New River coal at all, and was a very poor quality of coal.

"Only 134 tons of New River coal were delivered out of 10,000; 540 more were obtained from Georges Creek; while all the rest was a very inferior coal from Pennsylvania.

Coal of Poor Quality.

"The deliveries were in every case supported by a bill to the city, falsely stating that the coal was New River, and in most cases by a bill of lading, which falsely and fraudulently represented the coal to be New River.

"The coal was very poor in quality, and this fact was brought to the attention of the superintendent of sewers by his subordinates in charge of the pumping station. The ash tests made at the plant showed that the coal, with the exception of that which came from local sources, was uniformly bad; and these tests and the unsatisfactory results obtained by the use of the coal were known to Superintendent Leahy.

"The coal was so poor that a surplus cargo consigned to the city was offered by the contractor to the Boston Elevated Railway Company at $3.45, tested by that company and found so poor that they would not take it at any price.

"Not only was the bad quality of the coal fully known to the superintendent of sewers, but it was so poor that the slightest investigation should have satisfied him that it could not have been New River coal; and a very little investigation on his part would have disclosed facts which rendered it certain or at least probable that the coal could not have come from New River or anywhere in West Virginia.

City Loses $10,000.

"Notwithstanding these facts, and his knowledge of them, the superintendent of sewers took no steps to protect the interests of the city, but approved Hatfield & Hilles's bills as rendered, and they were paid in due course, although the last payment has not yet been made.

"The loss to the city through this contract was approximately 25 per cent., or $10,000.

"This result was due, in the first place, to the conduct of the superintendent of supplies and the Mayor in awarding the contract to Hatfield & Hilles, rather than to the lowest responsible bidder, and, in the second place, to the failure of the superintendent of sewers to protect the interests of the city against the fraudulent deliveries of coal which were made by Hatfield & Hilles, and in approving the bills thus far rendered by the contractor.

"Hatfield & Hilles are a Philadelphia concern and beyond the jurisdiction of this commission. They have, however, received notice of these hearings and a request for their attendance. They have not appeared, and have refused to furnish papers and information which any honest contractor would have freely submitted as proof of the performance of his contract.

Fails to Give Reason.

"With regard to the Niver contracts, on May 10, 1906, the superintendent of supplies, although, as he confessed to the commission, he was totally unacquainted with the subject of coal purchases, awarded without competition a contract for 440 tons Georges Creek Cumberland coal, the best of its kind, to a Mr. Klous, whom he claimed never to have met before (and who seems singularly to be unknown to or slightly acquainted with the city officials), the representative of the W. K. Niver Company. He awarded to the same company, through the same Mr. Klous, also without competition, further contracts, as follows: June 29, 190, 2,000 tons; September 19, 1906, 1,500 tons; June 20, 1907, 3,000 tons.

"The superintendent of supplies failed to give to this commission any real justification for awarding these contracts without competition, but the approval of the Mayor was nevertheless secured.

"On November 5, 1906, a contract for 6,000 tons was awarded to the same company, through the same Mr. Klous, after an apparent, but not real, public competition.

"The prices offered by other bidders were based presumably upon an expectation that they would be obliged to deliver the grade of coal required by the contract, while Mr. Klous had learned, through previous experience, that, to satisfy the city officials he need only deliver anything that was black and would burn.

Clear Evasion of Law.

"As should have been expected from this bogus competition, the coal actually delivered was of the very poorest of cheap Pennsylvania coal, quite as bad as any delivered under the noncompetitive contracts.

"Under this contract, although complaining he lost money, Mr. Klous delivered, and the city accepted, an aditional 1,470 tons, without even asking the Mayor's written approval, a clear evasion of the law requiring competitive bids.

"Inferior quality of Pensylvania coal in all cases was substituted and falsely described in the bills of lading as Georges Creek coal, and Mr. Klous, in a letter sent from Boston to New York, cautioned his principal to bill this false substitute as Georges Creek coal.

"Complaints in forcible language were made of this coal, and the Superintendent of Streets notified Mr. Klous that unless the quality in future was improved he should terminate the contract. There is no evidence that the quality improved, and, instead of terminating the contract a new contract, that of June 28, 1907, for 3,300 tons, was made through Mr. Klous with the receiver of the Niver company, in which the standard of coal to be delivered was reduced. Georges Creek coal was still called for, but none has been ever delivered, the substitution of Pennsylvania coal of low grade being continued.

Seek Klous in Vain.

"In this connection, this amazing situation is discussed: Mr. Klous has been sought for by the commission. He has been notified through the press as few men have ever been of the desire for his presence. If he has any defence to these charges he has had ample opportunity to present it.

"These facts have been proved by the cumulative testimony of the city officials themselves, by documentary evidence, including false bills of lading and false invoices, by reputable coal dealers, by frequent fires in the coal pockets due to excessive sulphur in the coal, by ash tests ranging from 13 per cent. to 17 per cent., or more than double the ashes found in coal of the grades contracted for, by heat units of 12,400 on an average against 14,700, the minimum to have been expected—the loss to the city from this single deficiency being over $25,000 on less than 25,000 tons of coal—by both the geological and geographical impossibility of procuring such coal as the city has paid for from the sources whence the deceptive article has been shipped.

"They are illuminated by the persistent absence from the jurisdiction of your commission of both the coal dealers against whom the most damaging disclosures have been made.

Approved Dishonest Bills.

"The city officials have not protected the city, though the report of an expert showing the bad quality of the coal sold the city was presented to the acting superintendent of streets and to the Mayor early in 1906. They have either known nothing about coal or have satisfied themselves with futile protests undermined by continuous approval of the dishonest bills of the favored sellers. Competitive bids have been either deliberately avoided, or when allowed have resulted in the securing of contracts by the same sellers, whether their offers were high or low.

"Coal not simply inferior, but of commercially unknown varieties have, under these contracts, been foisted upon the city, the quality of the coal at times so debased that the United States Government would not have accepted it at any price. Yet in all instances the city has contracted and paid for the highest grade of coal.

"In not a single instance has an effective effort been made to secure for the city an honest delivery of the coal to which it has been entitled.

Honest Competition Abandoned.

"The city's transactions in coal show a complete and deliberate abandonment of the competitive system of awarding contracts which the Legislature intended should be followed, except in cases of emergency. This has been accomplished in three ways. First, by dispensing with all pretence of competition by securing the written approval of the Mayor on insufficient grounds.

Secondly, by advertising for bids and then awarding to other than the lowest bidder. Thirdly, by giving the contract to the lowest bidder under circumstances which should have warned intelligent and honest officials of the bidders' intention to substitute for the quality of coal named in the contract a grade distinctly inferior.

"The only possible result of this abandonment of honest competition has been shown by the evidence to be indifference, gross negligence and fraud."

MAYOR PROFESSES GREAT SURPRISE

Mayor Fitzgerald confesses to his surprise at learning that any coal dealer should have been so bold as to sell the city coal that was lower in grade than contracted for and falsify bills of lading. He promptly blames previous administrations for the methods which permit such occurrences. He will change them at once, he declares, after such revelations as have been brought out by the finance commission's investigation. This is the statement issued by the Mayor:

"While I have not yet received the official transcript of the testimony before the finance commission for which I have asked, enough has now appeared in the press reports of the testimony to enable me to define my attitude as head of the administration. In common with our citizens generally I am astonished at the evidence, apparently conclusive, of barefaced frauds perpetrated by certain coal dealers upon the city.

System Must Be Changed.

"I confess my surprise at learning that any coal dealer should have been bold enough to make out false bills of lading as a means of defrauding the city treasury. Sufficient testimony has certainly been brought out to warrant the institution of suits by the city to recover the overpayments which have been made for coal falsely billed and inferior to contract requirements. I have instructed the law department to enter such suits just as soon as the evidence has been gone over, and they will be pressed with all possible vigor.

"It already clearly appears that the present business system of the city does not afford sufficient protection against the substitution of inferior coal for the quality contracted for. The present administration has inherited methods handed down from its predecessors, and no special blame can attach to it for the defectiveness of these methods. Those must now be changed.

"In my message to the City Council recommending the constitution of the Finance Commission and the appropriation of $50,000 to meet the expenses of its investigation, I urged the importance of an 'inquiry into the finances of the city and the conduct of its affairs,' laying special emphasis on the question 'whether the present systems of bookkeeping, auditing and administration afford sufficient protection to the city treasury.'

Prepares New Instructions.

"If I had not realized that gross abuses must necessarily exist as a result of the present systems I would not have advocated the appointment of the commission. If the United States government and large private corporations can adopt methods of testing the quality of coal which ensure that payment will only be made for actual value delivered, the city of Boston can, and will do so; indeed, I find that such methods already prevail in at least one of our city departments.

"I propose to see that they are forthwith introduced by all of the city departments which use any considerable quantities of coal, and that it is made impossible for any more frauds of this character to be perpetrated on the city. I am now preparing a circular letter of instructions to all heads of departments fully covering this matter, and this will be sent out to-morrow."

ROBERT F STRAINE

DOROTHY STRAINE

Anna F. Duncan,

To-day is an eventful one in the lives of Robert F. Straine, the Boston broker, his daughter, Dorothy, and the nurse, Miss Duncan, whom Straine employed.

Dorothy does not yet know whether she must obey her father's commands, turn over to him the millions of dollars she has inherited from her mother, or whether she will be left free to manage her affairs and keep him at a distance, as she desires. She will know her fate to-day.

Robert F. Straine does not yet know whether he must go to court and be tried for an alleged attempt to kidnap his own daughter, or whether he will have at his command her millions, to speculate with, if he chooses, or to do what he pleases with.

Because Miss Duncan aided him, according to the police, in his alleged attempt at kidnapping his own flesh and blood, she, too, is anxious. Must she spend some years behind prison bars, or will she be allowed to breathe the cool, bracing Autumn air untrammelled?

Thus a trio of unusually interesting characters is anxiously awaiting the verdict which the next few hours will bring to them—for the Grand Jury at Dedham, which has been considering the charges against Mr. Straine and Miss Duncan, made by Dorothy Straine, makes its final report to-day.

TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE TO END NEXT WEEK?

Officials of the Boston Commercial Telegraphers' Union declared today that there were indications that the strike would be settled next week. What these indications are they would not say, but they were emphatic in asserting that the strike could be settled only one way—the strikers' way.

Possibilities of an early settlement are also prevalent among the New York strikers. A bulletin received by the Boston strikers today from New York says:

"Business men are telling our men, who are seeking employment, that there is no use hiring them because the strike is going to be settled next week."

The following notice was received by the Boston local to-day from General Secretary-Treasurer Wesley Russell:

"Pay no attention to newspaper articles printed in your locality that strikers in other parts of the country are returning to work. They are inspired by the telegraph companies for the obvious purpose of misleading and discouraging the strikers at places where reliable information can only be had by mail. Associated Press reports should be disregarded in this fight. Our ranks are firm, and there have been no desertions worthy of note since the strike began. Stick and win."

HIGGINSON NOT IN COURTROOM TO FACE SUIT

Whipper-in of the Hounds, Dismissed by Milionaire, Brings Action.

SEEKS DAMAGES OF $750

After weeks of effort on the part of the attorneys for the plaintiff, the celebrated case of Tom P. W. Cotesworth, whipper-in of the hounds vs. J. Henry Higginson, all around millionaire and society light of Boston, was called at the Concord District Court to-day only to be postponed until next Monday because the wealthy defendent did not appear in court.

In vain the attorneys for the prosecution, after pointing out the difficulties in getting a hearing, asked that Mr. Higginson be compelled to attend and in vain they asked that the case be allowed to go on. The court ruled against them.

Society Folk Interested.

The troubles attending the attempt of Cotesworth, of a fine old English family, professional master of hounds, master of the hunt and whipper-in of the kennels, to obtain what he claims is justice from the hands of his former millionaire employer, the son of Major Henry L. Higginson, have already attracted the attention of both New York an Boston society, and the case is discussed with equal interest by the masters and those who serve them.

It was last April when after a wardy quarrel Tom Cotesworth was discharged on the spot in alleged violation of the terms of the contract.

Cotesworth declares as a whipper-in, and as an all around boss of the dogs, there was no fault to be found with him, and says that jealousy on the part of his own uncle master of the hounds, is responsible for the present contest.

He first arrived from Yorkshire, England, about three years ago and went to work for Foxhall Keene, the well-known society man who, when through with his service, loaned him to Higginson. Higginson afterward hired him aand, according to Cotesworth, there was a contract that stipulated that Cotesworth was not to be discharged without ninety days' notice.

Discharged by Uncle.

When Cotesworth was discharged from Middlesex Meadows by his uncle, on June 2 last, he says he did not get the notice, and now he sues for the alleged balance of his less than $10 a week salary, as well as an additional sum as balm to his wounded feelings, or a total ad damnum of $750.

Cotesworth says that Higginson is dodging the suit. Higginson refuses to talk about it.

To-day he is in Montreal racing his horses at the Montreal Jockey Club. He is expected home to-morrow.

4 UNIDENTIFIED IN IOWA WRECK

WATERLOO, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Work of identifying four of the twelve passengers killed in the Rock Island wreck at Norris, Ia., proceeded to-day. As many more were injured, some of whom are in a precarious condition.

The northbound express was ten minutes late at Norris Siding, three miles north of Cedar Falls, and there a southbound freight train was awaiting the express, which came rushing at terrific speed to make up time. Just as the engine of the express was about to pass the freight engine, the front trucks jumped the track and the engine rushed into the engine of the freight, wrecking both engines and telescoping the baggage, mail and smoking cars. It was in the smoking car that the fatalities occurred.

Terrifying Bursts of Speed in 24-Hour Endurance Test at Morris Park.

LACROIX NOW IN LEAD.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Speed mad, and with their leaping flame-shooting machines abreast, Paul Lacroix, a young millionaire, and L. W. Smedser, driver of a Lozier car, raced like demons to-day around the track of the Morris Park Motordome Club in a terrifying struggle for leadership in the great twenty-four-hour endurance run. Records dwindled before the insane, death-defying rush of the two men.

The race is the New York Automobile Club's annual twenty-four-hour endurance run. There were nine starters last night in the contest for the glory and the prizes of $700, $200 and $100.

Through the night the race continued, the ghostly cars flashing through the blaze of calcium fronting the stand only to vanish in the darkness beyond—alternately coming and going at a record-breaking gait which time and again seemed to presage disaster and death. Two machines broke down early and were withdrawn.

Lacroix, driving a Renault car, had then taken the place of Maurice Bernin, the professional driver, and at the tenth hour was three miles ahead of the best American record, with Smedser only a few laps behind. Both cars were rushing around the track at record-breaking speed, and the 3,000 spectators of the early morning hung close to the rails and cheered wildly. The two men dashed down the long stretches and took the sharp turns without slacking speed. Many times they skidded around the turn on two wheels each, while the spectators held their breaths and were stricken into silence by fear of a terrible catastrophe. With remarkable skill, however, both Lacroix and Smedser guided their cars and kept up their terrifying burst of speed. They looked hardly like human beings in their goggles and helmets as they went shooting around the track.

WOMEN PICK UP COAL; FINE

Two women, Mrs. Anna Tutinka, of No. 22 Margin street, and Mrs. Elizabeth Tutez of No. 25 Margin street, Hyde Park, were arraigned in the Dedham District Court to-day. The evidence showed that the two women had been walking along the tracks o the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and picking up here aand there a few lumps of coal that had fallen from the cars of the company as they were whirled along toward Boston. They were haled into court and fined $5 each for walking on the tracks of the railroad company and $10 each for picking up the coal to feed.

Earle's "Affinity" Defends Her "Soul Love;" Blames Wife

FOUND IN CATSKILLS, MISS JULIA KUTTNER, TELLS HER OWN STORY.

By ANGELA MORGAN.

NEW YORK, Sept 7.—"I am not an interloper. I have not come between this man and his wife. Mrs Earle is not a martyr. This day I would gladly give him up, for duty sake, although he is the only man I have ever loved, if the wife would consent. But she will not. It was she who urged me to try to fill the need in his life which she admits she had been unable to meet."

These words, uttered by Miss Julia Kuttner, were the prelude to a remarkable interview given to me by her yesterday in her retreat in the Orange Mountains. She told me the whole story of her love for Ferdinand Pinney Earle. It was a tale of romance, heart-suffering and sacrifice, which for amazing details and unusual climaxes outranks any narrative of fiction I ever have read.

Makes First Statement.

This long statement by the astonishing young woman whose connection with the domestic affairs of the Earles has set aside the conventions of society and shocked the civilized world is the first she has made since the matter became public.

Miss Kuttner withheld nothing. She narrated from its beginning to the present stage the development of her friendship for the artist. She explained her motives in the affair.

She told of her acquaintance with him abroad, of the manner in which the friendship ripened to love, of her visit to the wife, of their midnight conferences in their struggle to solve the problem, and of the decision which sent Mrs. Earle over the sea with her little son to secure a divorce and leave her free to marry Earle.

She Sought Reconciliation.

The most astounding revelation made by Miss Kuttner during the interview came when, with glowing eyes and uplifted face, she made the following declaration:

"I tell you honestly and in all earnestness, that when I went to the home of the Earles, when I accepted the hospitality of this man's wife, my object was absolutely this: to effect a reconciliation between the two. I knew they had not been happy. He had told me so. He had revealed the situation to me in its every aspect.

"I came over here from Europe with the express purpose of accomplishing a reconciliation. I changed my plans—came over a month earlier than I had intended—simply and purely to bring them together.

"In spite of the fact that this man is so dear to me, I would have considered it the crowning glory of my life had I been able to bring these two into a perfect understanding. The highest form of love is unselfishness. I would have gloried in performing this highest of all love's offices."

I found Julia Kuttner in a little farmhouse in the mountains, secure in the seclusion of the unfrequented and almost inaccessible locality and in the protection of brother Alfred.

Overwhelmed by Notoriety.

Bounded by scenery that is sublime in its beauty, companioned by hills and [illegible] and silence, she was striving to adjust her mind to the strange circumstances that had swept her out of the usual paths of life and bewildered her by their force and unexpectedness.

I found her utterly overwhelmed by the notoriety that had come to her.

"Why," she said, with a gasp, when she welcomed me, "it seems incredible that all this storm should be raised over an affair that is purely private, and absolutely no one's concern but our own. To think that I, who always have shunned publicity, and who dreaded notoriety as a most deadly thing, should be compelled to face the public in this way! Oh, it is unfair! Why, no one knows the true story—no one really guesses the real facts."

"I want you to tell me those facts," I said. "I will record them as you give them, absolutely. Tell me your side of the story, Miss Kuttner."

"Come out under the trees," she said, "where we can talk freely. I want to tell you the truth—I want you to give the real situation—just as I tell it."

She turned and led the way to a large flat rock under a big spreading tree.

Straightforward, Candid Eyes.

Motioning me to sit there, she flung herself on the grass, schoolgirl fashion, with her hands clasped about her knees, and faced me with straightforward, candid eyes. Her brother, following, threw himself down beside her, listening closely to the conversation and joining in at intervals.

How does she look, this young girl about whose strange beliefs and unconventional attitude the whole world is talking?

Here is the picture of her as she looked when she told me her story:

A clean-cut, high-bred, attractive face, losing none of its feminine charm because of its intellectuality.

The eyes—clear, unflinching, absolutely candid in their gaze—were gray-blue in color, with lashes of brown.

The brows were darker than her hair, which was of the indefinite brown which defies exact classification. She wore it brushed back from her forehead, in a low pompadour that escaped severity because of its loose waves.

Her forehead is one of her most attractive features. It is peculiarly expressive, and bespeaks temperament, as well as earnestness of thought.

Miss Kuttner's face is a long oval, the cheeks round and girlish, the chin sensitive, the nose straight and comely, the mouth pretty and turned up at the corners. She has even, white teeth that gleam delightfully when she smiles.

Dress Neat and Unpretentious.

Yesterday she wore a simple, collarless, white shirtwaist, made of unpretentious material and trimmed with neat embroidery and tucks. Her skirt was most simple, of blue and brown checks and of walking length.

She wore high shoes, as if for mountain tramps. Her face, hands and neck were sunburned from exposure to mountain breezes, as well as ocean winds.

She has a plump figure, girlish in outline, and her hands and wrists are daintily rounded.

Her physical characteristics are not noticed so much as her manner, her facial expression and her voice, which is exceedingly lovely—soft, well-modulated and cultured.

She is twenty-two years of age, but she has the mentality and poise of a much older woman.

While telling her story she seemed a strange contradiction—one moment as impulsive as a girl, and the next as serious and controlled as a woman of twice her age. At no time, however, did she lose her poise, her mastery of herself and the situation.

The thing that distressed her most was the thought of the misrepresentation of which she says she has been a victim.

"To think that the matter should have come before the public in the horrible way it has!" she exclaimed.

"Pictured as a Heartless Girl."

"This is what stuns me. It is hard to believe I must suffer such cruel judgment from the world. It is bitter to think my friends must hear of this as it has been presented.

"Just think how the world looks at me—how people are discussing me! I am pictured as a heartless girl bent on her own happiness, who has come between this man and his wife. This is anything but the truth.

"I would never come between any man and his wife. This proceeding is something to which Mrs. Earle not only agrees, but of which she is glad. She regards my friendship for Mr. Earle as a blessing to them both, as the means by which she shall secure freedom from an unhappy alliance and a chance for happiness for herself in the future."

"You mean Mrs. Earle intends to marry again?"

"She certainly will marry again, if she finds an opportunity to win the domestic felicity she has missed."

"Has she told you this?"

"Practically, yes. She has talked the matter over with me in every aspect, and she confessed to me she is glad of the chance to seek happiness in her native land. She has never been happy in this country. She was homesick from the first. Her domestic misfortune accentuated her misery. She is happier to-day than she has been for years, and she regards me as the means of her salvation."

Would Wed "Congenially."

"Mrs. Earle has not confessed regard for any one other than Mr. Earle, has she?" I asked.

"No, I don't believe she has any one in mind. But she told me she would be glad to marry again, if she thought she could be congenially mated. At least, this was the substance of her revelations to me."

"Tell me all about it, Miss Kuttner. I shall record your exact statements."

She settled herself on the grass and gazed dreamily at the mist-covered mountains for a long moment.

"It is all such a sacred thing to me," she continued. "I wish you knew how I dislike to admit the public into this sanctuary of my heart. One thing I wish distinctly understood. Not for worlds would I give this story were it not for the conditions which force me to clear myself. It is because of misapprehensions—gross errors in the statements given out—that I consent to lay bare my experience. I am doing this because I think it only justice to myself, to my friends and family and to the Earles. I will say that, with this understanding, I am grateful for the opportunity to clear myself."

Then, bringing her gaze to meet mine frankly, she went straight to the core of her narrative.

"In the first place, there has been no deception of any sort about this entire affair. I knew from the first that Mr. Earle was a married man. I knew it, and the friendship that sprang up at the very beginning was not a friendship that violated the knowledge of his marriage to another woman."

Sympathy Established.

"Then the friendship was a matter of your first meeting?"

"Yes, I will confess that a mutual understanding sprang to life at our first meeting. As soon as we had talked with each other this bond of sympathy was established."

"It was love at first sight, then, was it not?"

"No, no—I should not call it that. The real understanding came afterward. This immediate comprehension, or sympathy, or whatever you choose to call it, was not of a romantic nature—not then. You see, I did not know then he was unhappy in his married life. I naturally did not permit myself to think of him as other than a friend, under those circumstances."

"Then when did you permit yourself to consider a closer friendship?"

"Not until he had told me of his unfortunate domestic affairs; not until he had revealed to me the he and his wife longed for release from each other, that they could not be happy together. Even then I strove to reunite them—but that will come later."

"When did you first meet Mr. Earle?" I asked.

"About two years ago. Our interest in settlement work in New York brought us together. Our sympathies, our tastes, our activities were in harmony. We seemed to be at one in all ideas. He understood me. I understood him. That was all—we understood each other."

"When did the acquaintance ripen?"

"Not until within recent months. Not, really, until we took the trip to Europe—my brother and I—and found ourselves, quite by accident, on the same steamer with Mr. Earle. That was this past June.

Acquaintance Ripened.

"When we arrived in Paris Mr. Earle stopped at the same place where my brother and I stopped, and we saw him often. We went motoring together and took long tramps together, my brother accompanying us most of the time. We all three spent a most enjoyable season in each other's society."

"Mr. Earle speaks of the psychological moment when you realized that you cared for each other," I observed. "What was it, Miss Kuttner?"

She laughed a sort of girlish, half-embarrassed laugh, then looked up with suddenly serious eyes.

"Oh, I can't tell you that—it is too sacred. That I shall never reveal. All I can say is that the revelation came to us quite unexpectedly—and with a sweeping certainty, one day—"

At the new, thrilling tone in her voice I looked up quickly. Her face had grown luminous. Her eyes, formerly so steady and controlled, radiated a swift glory. Her entire being seemed exalted.

Then she spoke in a hushed voice, with her eyes on the mountain that lay veiled in mist.

"It was a wonderful understanding," she said.

We were all silent for a while. Then, gradually, it came back to me that I was listening, not to the story of a woman who loved a free man, but one who was aware of the man's obligations, by every law of society, to protect and honor the woman who bears his name—the woman who is the mother of his child.

"No Sacrifice for Mrs. Earle."

I looked at Julia Kuttner and asked her a question.

"Would you be willing, under identical circumstances, to make as generous a sacrifice for another woman as Mrs. Earle is making for you?"

She met me frankly and without hesitation.

"But it is no sacrifice for Mrs. Earle. She gave him to me. I have explained to you she does not wish to remain bound to her husband by law when she is not bound to him in sympathy and understanding. Mrs. Earle does not consider that she is making a sacrifice."

I asked another question.

"Miss Kuttner, let us suppose that you marry Mr. Earle. Let us suppose that, after years have passed, he decides he loves another woman; would you be willing to give him up to that other woman?"

She was silent, and I could see the thought startled her, alarmed her, perhaps. But she did not lose her poise, her mastery of the situation.

"I suppose I would give him up to her," she said, slowly. Then, lifting her head: "Yes, if it was for his best good and his happiness I would give him up. The highest aspect love wears is that of renunciation."

"Miss Kutner, do you think there is any possibility that Mrs. Earle really loves her husband and that she is concealing it?"

"Why, of course she loves him. I honestly believe she loves him—that is, in her way. But she does not love him as a wife should love."

"How do you know that?"

"She told me so. She said to me: 'I have never in my life had the perfect understanding you feel—the wonderful sympathy—for my husband. I do not know what such a feeling is.'"

It was then Miss Kuttner told me of the memorable night when the decision was made that left Earle's happiness in her hands.

"It was one week after I had been in the Earle home. I had made every effort to reconcile the two. I begged them to make one last trial—to see earnestly if they could not adjust their differences. I did everything in my power to this end. I talked to each separately and I talked to them together. I urged and pleaded. But one night—it was Saturday night, or, rather, Sunday morning, for it was 2 o'clock or after—Mrs. Earle left her room and came upstairs to mine. She sat down by the bedside.

"'Julia, it is no use,' she said. 'I can't do it—it is impossible. We cannot be happy we cannot. Why should we try any longer? Love cannot be forced. It must come itself. We are hopelessly out of sympathy. Listen, Julia. You understand him. You can make him happy. I want you to promise me you will.'

"We sat there in the dark, talking it over, as women talk in the silence of the night. And that hour decided it. There was no longer any battle, any doubt. There were not two paths any longer—she had taken the choice from me."

Mrs. Earle Pleaded.

Then the young woman told me how Mrs. Earle loved her; how sincerely attached to her she had become; how she pleaded with her to remain under her roof still longer.

"This I wish to make distinctly clear," said Miss Kuttner. "It was at Mrs. Earle's urgent request that I remained in their home as long as I did. I am sorry now I consented to stay, for it was because of this I was so severely censured. I should have left after that decision. As it was, I stayed three weeks altogether. Oh, I am so sorry now."

She reverted to the psychological moment in Paris when she and the artist realized they loved each other.

"Just so soon as we realized it we wrote a joint letter to Mrs. Earle, explaining the entire matter," she said. "We wished above everything to do honest things. Then we went to the parents of Mrs. Earle and told them everything."

"How did they accept it?"

"They were perfectly satisfied—and happy to think their daughter would be free at last and would return to them. I had become acquainted with Mrs. Earle's parents and they were lovely to me. My brother and I lived on the same street in Paris where they resided. We were all very congenial."

She referred again to the extreme relief and happiness manifested by the wife of the artist over the present arrangement.

"I really do not quite understand Mrs. Earle myself," she said. "She is, I confess, an enigma to me. No matter how I felt toward a man, I do not believe I could bring myself to be as happy as she is. She was absolutely radiant over it."

Miss Kuttner admitted after awhile that Mr. and Mrs. Earle were perfectly congenial, so far as artistic tastes and sympathies were concerned.

"And that only makes the psychology of the entire problem more difficult," she said. "That semes heard to understand, perhaps. But, you see, it is not sufficient that a man and woman have the same tastes and ideas. There must be that indefinable something between them which, for lac kof a better name, we call compatability. If this is lacking they cannot live in harmony.

"I wish to be perfectly honest and to state the plain facts. I must confess that Mrs. Earle has the artistic temperament. She can sympathize with her husband's artistic inspirations—and yet she cannot inspire him. She frankly admits her inability to inspire and help hi min his work."

Miss Kutiner made a striking statement during the course of the conversation.

"The marriage and divorce laws of this county make it practically impossible for people to be truly moral," she declared.

She said this in connection with statements concerning the open, honest course she and Earle had pursued as soon as they knew their real feeling for eac hother.

"We Are Too Honest."

"The trouble is, we were too honest," she said. "That is why we have suffered. We might have taken the dishonest course pursued by so many—but we scorned to do anything that was not absolutely high-minded."

She made some revelations when we talked of the little boy, for whom it had been said the artist showed such lack of fatherly feeling.

"Why, Mr. Earle loves the child—it is the great sacrifice of his life to part with him."

"Did he suffer over the thought of parting?"

"Suffer! He suffers keenly—more than any one can know. I have seen hi msuffer—he love sthe child. Why, it was this bond that kept Mr. and Mrs. Eare together so ong—two years—after they reached the conension they could not adjust their differences. eH told me that it was not until he met me that he could bring himself to make this sacrifice. As it is, the parting may not be for long."

Later on, she declared she thought one should be free to think for himself, in all matters, religious, social and personal.

"I believe I nthe freedom of the individual to solve all problems for himself. I have always thought for myself—I have reasoned about everything from my own viewpoint. I do not believe in permitting others to do our thinking for us."

Here Is the "Soul Affinity" for Whom Artist Earle Has Discarded His Wife

Mob Smashes the Windows of Earle's Home at Monroe

Artist Safe in New York Says Wife Was "Too Sunny for Him."

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Ferdinand P. Earle announces that he would not go back to his country estate near Monroe for several days. Just what his immediate plans are do not seem certain. It is not unlikely that the young artist's affairs will be brought to the attention of the village council. Village President Paddleford is anxious that there be no recurrence of the disturbances of Wednesday and Thursday nights, and the men, who are still making angry threats as to what will be the fate of Earle, are closely guarded.

Victor M. Earle, the artist's brother, said last night that there was no truth in the report that Semmering had been placed on the market for sale.

Neighbors and friends of the bewhiskered idealist, the man who believes his eccentricities are born of genius, gathered at his home yesterday. A man hurled a rock and it went crashing through a window. This was a signal for many rocks to be hurled. Window after window was smashed, and then with hoots and yells the crowd went on back to Monroe.

Earle was too gloomy to amalgamate with his wife's sunny disposition.

That is one of the explanations given by the free love artist of Orange county for sending away his legally wedded spouse in order to have a free course with his "affinity," Julia Kuttner. Mr. Earle said to-day:

"I could lament that my blundering in the papers has extinguished the flame in the breast of my 'affinity' and that she soon sails for Italy, to end her days in a convent. Or I could discover that I had never met the real Julia, and that I have been duped by a bold adventuress, who realizes that my supposed millions are but thousands and therefore threatens to desert me.

"But I wish to speak to the brave people who are anxious to get at the truth of this matter, the people who reserve their verdicts until the accused have had a chance to defend and vindicate their position.

Wife Too "Sunshiny."

"My wife was all song and sunshine until the gloom of my too positive personality left her life colorless and gray. And it was all intensity and work until some subconscious friction between us sapped all my mental and psychic energy. This state of affairs we both cheerfully believed would change, and for a long while we convinced even the friends initiated into the mystery that the horizon was bright with hope.

"Later we felt confident that the arrival of little Harold would chase away the ugly phantoms that haunted even our happiest moments. But the song and sunshine did not come back and the energy failed to revive, and thus two years passed. There had been talk of the necessity of a separation, but I could not rob Mrs. Earle of Harold and I could not bear to part with him, and she would never have taken him away from me had not the coming into my life of an unsuspecting stranger awakened the latent and languishing energy and given me courage to part from my boy to whom I had given much care and love.

He Suggested Parting.

"I intimated as gradually and as kindly as possible to Mrs. Earle the new element in our relations, and as soon as she grasped the whole situation it was comforting, to say the least, to see the old smiles returning to her face and the old songs resurrected.

"We did not shrink from legal obstacles, for both wished to act honorably, kindly and openly.

JULIA KUTTNER'S FAMILY LOCATED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Sept. 7.—Mrs. Julia Kuttner has been here with her family for the last three Summers, hiring a cottage each year. The family has kept much to itself, and its members have had few if any intimates here. The mother, who is a widow, is said to be a believer in the Kneipp cure and to walk in the wet grass mornings in her bare feet.

It had been so thorougsly understood here that Miss Julia Kuttner was abroad this year with her brother, that Bethlehem people at first refused to believe that she was the one mentioned as the affinly of Artist Earle.

The only members of the family in evidence are the second son and second daughter, the first a solid built young man of about eighteen, the latter a Miss several years younger.

The son, who has evidently been delegated to do the talking to reporters, said that his mother could not be seen as she is ill with a cold. "We have nothing to say. I have instructions from Mrs. Kuttner to say absolutely nothing," he said.

NOTORIETY SENDS EARLE'S MOTHER INTO SECLUSION

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Ferdinand Pinney Earle, millionaire widow of the general and mother of the eccentric artist who discarded his wife and child that he might wed his "sister soul," said to-day her son's action and its attendant publicity would drive her into seclusion.

"The disgraceful way in which the family has been hounded,' she said in her apartments in the Manhasset, One Hundred and Eighth street and Broadway, "has made me determine to move away. I do not know yet where I will go, but it will be where no one will find me.

"I cannot stand this disgraceful thing any more. I want to get away where no one will know me."

Mrs. Earle did not speak as though she condemned her son's act, but rather that she lamented the publicity it had brought the family.

WIFE SLAIN, MAN DYING IN MYSTERY

CHICAGO, Sept 7.—Mrs Frerd H. Fish, 349 years old, wife of Frerd H. Fish, a wealthy retired broker, was found murdered in her home, No. 423 Davis street, Evanston, shortly after 7 o'clock today. Mystery surrounds the tragedy.

The husband, with his throat cut, was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom. He was taken to the Evanston hospital. The case may prove to be a double to have been instantaneous. The head was crushed and there were several deep cuts about the neck and shoulders. It is believed by the police she was killed with a meat cleaver as she lay asleep in bed and then her body was dragged on to the floor. The tragedy occurred between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning. At that time neighbors say they heard noises of a quarrerl in the Fish home.

SMALLPOX IN HOTEL WHERE BREAKERS LIVE

Scourge Breaks Out in Western Union Telegraph Company's Hotel at Pittsburg.

INMATES FLEE IN PANIC

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—Great excitement prevails at the Western Union main office at No. 249 Fifth avenue today on account of smallpox developing at the hotel conducted by the Western Union Telegraph Company on the fourth floor of their building.

Lysle Morris, a foreman of linemen and also a substitute operator who came to Pittsburg on August 10 from his home at St. Petersburg, Pa., and went to work for the Western Union here, on Thursday last, was taken sick and ordered home where he lived with his wife and two children at No. 1411 Federal street Allegheny, Pa. On arrival there a doctor was sent for who immediately pronounced it smallpox. Another doctor was called and after consultation he was taken to the pest house in Allegheny. His home was immediately quarantined and two policemen guard it. At the Western Union main office here today six operators and twelve messengers hurriedly left the building while officials tried to assure the employees the reports were not true. The Board of Health has been notified and the Western Union building will probably be quarantined. Mr Morris' sister lives next door to where he lived with his wife and said: "Lysle Morris has spent the last three weeks at the Western Union working day and night and had to sleep on a cot there; the unhealthy conditions caused the disease. He told me many men who slept there were complaining of being sick."

Great efforts are being made by the manager, N. E. Church, whose wife was working as an operator, having left a seven-weeks-old baby at home, to stop the rumor.

COUPLE NEARLY DEAD; WOMAN BLEW OUT GAS

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. H. John Friendes, a Portuguese couple from Fall River, had a narrow escape from death by inhaling gas while stopping at the Eagle House. The couple came here looking for friends, but were unable to find them, and put up at the Eagle House.

Soon after the couple retired Mrs. Friendes found the room so warm that she tried to turn off the gas, and not understanding how to do this, she says she blew it out.

Real Issue Hidden for Self-Interest, Congressman Declares in Springfield.

KILEY ALSO HAS SAY

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 7.—Congressman O'Connell has again taken up the merger question as a platform topic and has delivered a hard blow at Henry M. Whitney by declaring that the latter was hiding the real issue for self-interest.

Mr. O'Connell, together with Daniel Kiley, were the principal speakers at a rally in Graves Hall last night in the interest of General Charles W. Bartlett.

The Congressman scored Whitney's position and followed by painting a gloomy picture of the Bay State with the consolidation of the two railroad systems and declared that many of the great industries would be crushed out of existence to suit the whims of the management of this gigantic combine which would seek to remove these industries to other places.

"Only Mr. Whitney's close affiliation with monopolists and their custom of riding rough shod over the rights of the people," Mr. O'Connell said, "could account for the presence in the Democratic party of such views, so undemocratic and so much opposed to the interests of the whole common people."

Mr. Kiley first spoke on tariff reform and then reciprocity and then took up the merger question. He declared that Mr. Whitney had already admitted being in favor of the merger and that if elected would sign the bill.

At the close of the rally an organization was formed for the purpose of furthering General Bartlett's interests. Patrick J. Mitchell was made permanent chairman and Franklin W. Edwards secretary.

POLITICAL RIVALS GUESTS AT CAPE COD DRUMMERS' SMOKER

General Bartlett and Henry M. Whitney at the same banquet table.

Bartlett on the merger question and Whitney on reciprocity and tariff revision. That is how the rival contestants in the political arena lined up last night at the smoker and talkfest of the Cape Cod Commercial Travellers' Association at the Quincy House. But all was harmony.

Mr. Bartlett, in the course of his address on the merger, referred to himself and Mr. Whitney as "travellers," political wayfarers from place to place. This was received with shouts of merriment and applause on the part of the diners.

Mr. Whitney, in beginning his address, said he had much at heart the interests of the State, but he doubted if he could say very much that would be new for reciprocity and tariff revision. He referred again to the importance of enlarging our trade relations with Canada.

DROPS DEAD IN NEWTON.

NEWTON, Sept. 7.—Otis F. Pettee, aged fifty-four, a former business man of Newton Upper Falls, dropped dead yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maria Bacon, 1,185 Boylston street. Death was due to heart trouble.

Millionaire and His Plucky Wife To Drive Zebras Up Broadway

Pretty Mrs. Hopkins Will Brave Death in Tandem Drive of Daring Novelty.

Mrs. Russell Hopkins, wife of a Southern millionaire, is going to sit beside her husband as he drives up Broadway, New York, managing two zebras, hitched tandem, to a high two-wheeled tandem cart. How's that for a woman's bravery!

This ride will cost Hopkins $20,000, and maybe his own life and that of his daring wife, for no one can tell what the rearing, tearing, wild zebras will do when they get in the midst of the noisiest, busiest city street in the world.

But Hopkins and wife say they will do it, and Hopkins is now busy trying to tame his first zebra. He calls it "Sing Sing." The second zebra he will soon own, and this he will call "Arsenic."

Learning that it was extremely difficult to train the zebra so that the animal would work well in harness, the Southerner's sporting blood asserted itself, and he determined to accomplish the feat.

Hopkins has an estate at Irvington-on-the-Hudson. He keeps a menagerie there—bears, lions, tigers, ostriches and birds. But he yearned for zebras.

The millionaire hustled to Frank Gunther, who has charge of the animals and said:

"Frank, you and I, being practical men, are going to tame the festive zebra. We are going to curb his haughty spirit and lay his hauteur in the dust."

"I'm going to drive a brace of zebras up Broadway and I'm going to halt them in front of Martin's. Also, Frank, I am going to dine there, and, in addition, Frank, little Russell is going to drive the spanking pair up to Del's."

According to all who have been monkeying with Mr. Zebra, in about two weeks he'll be gentle and tractable and be perfectly willing to whiz up Broadway in front of a carriage.

HELEN GOULD VISITS TENTS OF EVANGELISTS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—In a remarkable automobile tour last evening Miss Helen Gould, in company with Rev. Dr. W. J. Ely, Rev. Dr. Ingram and Mrs. Ingram, made a visit to four of the evangelistic tent meetings now being conducted by Dr. Ely and his assistants.

The trip was made at Miss Gould's suggestion. Since her return from Europe she has shown great interest in the work of the evangelistic committee and has frequently expressed a wish to inspect the tents at an hour when the meetings were held.

It was through the generosity of Miss Gould that the committee has been able to continue these meetings. She has at several times contributed large amounts to the work, and altogether donated at least $25,000.

The work would have been discontinued long ago had it not been for her gifts, and as a result of last night's tour she has expressed her intention of aiding the committee further.

BATTLE OVER STRIP OF LAND

LYNN, Sept. 7.—Because he believes that he owns two feet of land which is claimed by the city at the corner of Ocean street and Michigan avenue, Abraham C. Ferris of No. 57 Ocean street, a large real estate owner, proposes to fight the city to a finish.

To-day he staked out his land and included the two-foot strip, which runs for a distance of nineteen feet along Ocean street and Michigan avenue.

He alleges that the city took his land without his consent, and has failed to pay him damages, although other abutters in the vicinity have been given money by the city for land taken.

"I'll build a stone wall here if this doesn't bring the city to its senses," said Ferris, after he had driven the stakes; and if the stone wall doesn't bring relief, he threatens to erect a tenement house right out to the line to which he claims his rights as a property owner extend.

BARD OF HIGH ROCK BOWS TO RELATIVES

LYNN, Sept. 7.—After stubbornly and persistently contesting the attempt on the part of his relatives to secure from the Probate Court an order requiring the appointment of a conservator for his estate, John W. Hutchinson, the bard of High Rock, has suffered a change of sentiment and within the past few days he has reached the conclusion that he needs and desires a conservator.

In view of his recent change of opinion Mr. Hutchinson is said to have held a conference with his grandchildren, at which it was agreed that Thomas P. Nichols, a well-known master printer, should be the new conservator.

LOWELL ALDERMAN DEAD.

LOWELL, Sept. 7.—Alderman James W. Barry is dead of heart trouble, after a short illness.

MOTHER SEES BABY'S LIFE CRUSHED OUT

Mildred Robertson, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Robertson of No. 61 Richfield street, Dorchester, fell beneath the wheels of a heavy ice wagon early last night and was instantly killed, while her mother, unable to help her, screamed and wrung her hands as she saw her baby's life crushed out.

Little Mildred was out walking with her mother and Miss Jennie Goldberg.

At the corner of Olney and Margaret streets, within a minute's walk of the Robertson home, one of the Dorchester Ice Company's wagons, driven by John D. McIntire of No. 28 Hecla street, was lumbering on its way. The baby, skipping to and fro, broke from the mother's hand and ran off into the street, getting in front of the huge wheel. Driver McIntire, warned by the mother's cries, pulled up his horses, but he was too late. The wheels had knocked the child down and passed over the little body.

The unconscious little form was carried into Proctor's Pharmacy at the corner of Olney and Bowdoin streets. Dr. Ferguson and other physicians were hurriedly summoned, but all signs of life had fled before their arrival.

McIntire, the driver, weeping like a child, willingly accompanied a policeman to station 11, where he told the story of the accident. Mrs. Robertson declared that the driver was in no way to blame.

FIELD'S WIDOW HOLDS OFFICE

Chicago, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of this city's merchant prince, has just been appointed civic health commissioner.

Mrs. Field inherited about $60,000,000 at the death of her husband, so she does not need the salary which her official position will bring her. She has, however, long been interested in this phase of the city's government, and the appointment was made in recognition of the able suggestions she has made to the board in regard to the health of the city.

R. I. CONVENTION DATE.

FRIENDS FEAR SCIENTIST IS DEAD IN ARCTIC

Vilhjalmar Stefansson of Peabody Museum, Harvard, Far from Aid in Far North.

LEFT OVER A YEAR AGO

Friends of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, a young assistant in ethnology in the Peabody Museum of Harvard University, fear that he is in the gravest danger rin the Frozen North, although they will not admit that a man of the courage and resources of this daring Icelander has succumbed to cold and hunger in the trackless wilderness of ice he so boldly penetrated. But it is certain that if he has survived he may have undergone heart-rending sacrifices in behalf of science.

More than a year ago he went North to join the Anglo-American expedition backed financially by the Duchess of Bedford, which sought a new continent in Beaufort Sea, an arm of the dismal Arctic Ocean. Mr. Stefarsson journeyed first to Athabasca Landing, where he started on a 2,100 mile trip overland to Herscael Island in the Arctic Ocean. He arrived safe and well on August 9, 1906. The Duchess of Bedford, the Anglo-American expeditions ship, was due to reach there the next day, or soon afterwards, but that she was wrecked on the voyage is the latest and disheartening tidings.

Battered by Ice and Sunk.

The steamship Midnight Sun has brought to civilization the news that the exploration ship had been so buffetter by ice that she was in a sinking condition 200 miles from bleak Point Barrow as long ago as February last. She was abandoned there by Captain Mikkleson, her commander, and Professor Ernest Leffingwell of Chicago University and another man. They left the ship with sixty days' privisions and dog teams for a dash to the north. When one o fthelr dogs returned it was believed this party had perished.

Meanwhile Mr. Stefansson waited and waited until about the first of September for the exploring ship before making for some unknown camp with an Eskimo family. He had then only a thin Summer suit, all his Winter clothing being aboard the Duchess of Bedford.

"My coat and boots must come from deer and seals that are not enjoying good health," he wrote to a Cambridge friend more than a year ago.

This was the last heard of him. Without a Winter outfit, with only the clothing he wore and a note book, camera and rifle, he was in a pitiful plight in which to face the rigors of an Arctic Winter. He spoke bravely of the future, but it is plain he realized what was before him when he wrote:

"I don't think she (the ship) is coming in this year and I shall leave to-morrow with an Eskimo family to try and make my living hunting and fishing this Winter. We have plenty of ammunition, but most of the natives are short and the Winter will be a hungry one. This is rather a hard Winter to look forward to. I haven't even salt enough to go with the flesh straight diet."

Food Situation Desperate.

The situation as regards food at Herschel Island when this letter was written was desperate. Eleven whale ships had been waiting there for months for supply ships which never came. All finally sailed for the Pacific with crews half starving, leaving natives as destitute as themselves.

Mr. Stefansson had to make what was perhaps a life or death decision on the eve of the departure of the last whaler. He had to chose between going out with her to a land of food and sunshine or staying where he was and risking the arrival of the overdue Duchess of Bedford. If that vessel did not come, and he had given up hope of seeing her, he would have to face alone the horrors of the long Arctic night and Winter, and depend upon his rifle for food and clothing.

He had the courage to stay. His friends feel that he has the kind of courage to pull him through, if any man can survive the hardships he accepted.

ROCKEFELLER EMPEROR OF PHILIPPINES?

By Hayne Davis.

Special Correspondent to the Hearst News Service.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 7.—Several delegates to the peace conference, who consider the Philippines the apple of discord, which some time in the future will surely disturb peace in the Far East, made a novel suggestion during the discussion of the difficulty which would attend the sale of the Archipelago to a foreign country.

It was suggested that the United States might dispose of the islands to one of her multi-millionaire citizens with rights of sovereignty. By this course, Rockefeller or some great financier, through the payment of one hundred millions of dollars, could become empeorr of the Philippines and be in a position to apply theories which they have long been urging on other rulers.

The International Club gave a reception in honor of Professor Scovell of Wooster College, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin D. Mead of Boston.

TEDDY, JR., OUT HUNTING BEARS

DULUTH, Sept. 7.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who arrived here Wednesday night on the steamer Morse from Conneaut, O., has left for Colerain, on the Western Mesaba Range, where he is a guest of John C. Greenway, a Rough Rider friend of the President's and a prominent mining man.

Theodore said he had a pleasant trip up the lakes, but would say no more. Coleraine is in a good bear country, and the young man hopes for some exciting hunting. His brother Kermit is said to be with him.

DIES WHILE READING HUSBAND'S LETTER

LYNN, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Margaret Potter of No. 20 High street was found dead on a bench on the Lynn Common last evening. In her hand was a postcard from her husband, a veteran, who has been living in the Soldiers' Home, Togus, Me., announcing his intention to come to Lynn. When he arrived last night his wife's body was in a casket at her home.

LAST LIST OF FREE COUPONS TO WONDERLAND

Do Not Fail to Get To-morrow's Sunday American for the Tickets.

MANY THRILLING ACTS

"Alice in Wonderland" at Wonderland Park more than fills expectation. All agree that it is the prime park feature of the year.

More than a score of pretty young girls parade with Alice in her automobile as the central figure, and, mounting the stage especially constructed in the arena give singing, dancing, choruses, marches and the finest solo work.

"Alice in Wonderland" is of course the leading evening out-door spectacle of the park, but there are other performances of great merit, and the Carnival lasts through this week and next until the closing of the park season.

On Monday the six-day runners, gathered from all over the country, including the most famous racers of the world, will open in the Old Wild West grounds under the special management of Peter Golden. There will be twenty entries and the men will run four hours each evening.

Elaborate preparations have been made to accommodate the crowds at the six-day race. There is of course a grandstand beside the cinder path, but the majority of visitors will be accommodated in the oval inside the cinder path, reached by a specially constructed overhead bridge at the gate.

Meanwhile to-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish the last set of Wonderland free tickets for this season. They will be worth thirty cents and entitle holders to admission to the Park, a ride in the Mammoth Chutes and a ride on the Velvet Coaster.

It is anticipated that no less than 12,000 holders of SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons will visit Wonderland Park on Monday and Tuesday. The free tickets are good day or evening and so entitle the evening visitors to see the production of "Alice in Wonderland" among the other great open air features.

CARNIVAL WEEK LIKE ONE GRAND HOLIDAY AT REVERE BEACH

Have you had the chance between the rainstorms to see the carnival performances at Revere Beach?

It is all a big holiday over there, with 10,000 electric bulbs lighting sixteen arches over the boulevard and something strenuous doing every little while.

The young folks marvel deeply at the elephant on the tight cable sixty feet high. Herr Granada and Fedora are the elephant. They climb a pole into their rookery at one end of the wire, fix upon their shoulders a splendid gray imitation of an elephant's skin, open the draperies and step out upon the rope as one big elephant, while the multitude roars in excitement.

Difficult Acrobatic Work.

For the entire length of the cable they promenade with the balancing pole apparently gripped in the elephant's mouth. Reaching the eyrie at the opposite end of the wire the hind leg of the elephant kicks out playfully at the audience and the elephant disappears.

A moment later Herr Granada and Fedora reappear on the wire in normal rig, make their bows and proceed to do a lot of difficult acrobatic work. In the evening it winds up with a pyrotechnic display.

Cyclone the cyclist positively leaps the death gaps whenever his board run is dry. His first leap after a swift downward ride is twenty feet, the second forty feet. The board run is a hundred feet high at the apex and ends in the beach sands.

Twelve Leading Attractions Free.

The first time he tried it his bicycle went through the boards near the bottom and stuck. Cyclone kept on going and dug up the beach with his bushy head.

The great Ulvern offers all kinds of money if there is any deception in his death slide from the tower into the sea hanging by his teeth. In the evening they put a searchlight upon him. For the entire distance his arms are outstretched, forming a cross and the act generally is a screamer.

Twelve leading amusement places on Revere Beach are meanwhile daily accepting SUNDAY AMERICAN half fare coupons.

They are Hurley's Hurdlers, Automatic Bowling Alleys, Palace Merry-Go-Round, Auto-Go-Round, Fairyland Theatre, Musical Railway, Theatre Comique, Three-Way Figure-Eight Roller Coaster, Journey to the North Pole, Rollaway Skating Rink, Rough Rider Hippodrome and Mystic Rill.

The last set of these coupons for the season will be published in to-morrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN. Don't fail to get the SUNDAY AMERICAN and cut them out.

WOULDN'T this make some people mad!

An English writer says among other nasty things about Americans: "The only civilized people who make it a point of exporting the finest specimens of their women kind to foreign countries included in a consignment of cold dollars."

He also says some more, and the whole mean (yet, mayhap, true) criticism will be found in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

3 MEN DROPPED; MOLDERS ANGRY

AMESBURY, Sept 7.—Much indignation is being expressed by union men here today over the discharge of three prominent members of the Iron and Brass Molders' Union by Gray & Davis, manufacturers of automobile and carriage lamps.

John Mella, Eugene Cloyd and Thomas Freeman were yesterday notified that their services were no longer required. The members of the Brass Molders' Union declare that the three men were dismissed because they were among the most energetic in organizing the union last fall, and in establishing a nine-hour day at the factory. Their discharge is looked upon as a move by the firm to re-establish the ten-hour day.

LAMP EXPLODES; SETS VESSEL ON FIRE

By the explosion of a kerosene lamp, while Steward George Johnson was preparing his breakfast on the schooner Jessie Barlow, lying at the wharf of Alfred Windsor & Son, No. 436 Albany street, at 5:25 this morning, the galley became enveloped in flames and an alarm was sent in from box 70. The blaze was extinguished with a loss of $200. The vessel is owned by Windsor & Son.

Czar Nicholas' Hurried Visit to Kaiser Sets Diplomats Guessing

The meeting of Czar Nicholas and Kaiser William, on board the Russian ruler's yacht Standart.

Here is the most important as well as interesting of recent photographs, showing as it does Kaiser William of Germany and Czar Nicholas of Russia meeting on the deck of the Czar's yacht in German waters.

In Europe, where diplomats anxiously watch each meeting of the rulers of the great powers for fear it will upset that mysterious thing called the "balance of power" and plunge the nations into a war, the meeting of the Czar and the Kaiser is significant of the friendship of the two, now outwardly manifested.

The Czar likes the money of the German bankers, to whom he would like to sell his Russian bonds, and the Czar also wants to keep his eyes on the great German navy which William the Busy is building.

Nicholas hurried to see the Kaiser, following a meeting of King Edward and Emperor William and a revival of that arrangement the Czar dreads so much—an active, defensive alliance between Germany and Great Britain.

The Kaiser met the Czar on board the Standart on the morning of August 3. The Kaiser wore the uniform of a Russian admiral of the fleet, while the Emperor Nicholas wore the uniform of a German admiral. The Kaiser afterward received the Czar on board the Hohenzollern, on which the Kaiser gave a banquet. On the following night a dinner took place on the Standart.

WARM LEAGUE CAMPAIGN ON IN FALL RIVER

Chance of Electing Senator and Representatives Now Seems Good.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 7.—The prospects are that from now on there will be a lively campaign by the Independence League in this city, not only for the candidate for Governor, Thomas L. Hisgen, but for Senator for this district and possibly one or two candidates for the Legislature from the Tenth district, the Democratic stronghold here. Edward Cantwell is being urged to run as the candidate for Senator from this district. There is a warm fight in prospect in the Democratic party over the nominee for that party, the candidates being Representative T. F. Higgins and William A. Carman, the latter the unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic party in two campaigns.

The Republicans will have a new man in the field this year, as Senator Frank M. Chase is now a member of the Board of County Commissioners.

Opportunity for League.

Hence it is believed that the Independence League can make a pretty good showing in the senatorial fight. As for the representative fight in the Tenth District, the two members of the House from that district—Joseph A. Parks and Francis J. Fennelly—are candidates for re-election and have strong opposition in their own party and will have to make a fight for the nomination.

Here, too, it is believed the Independence League will be able to step in, and with a couple of good candidates in the field make some people sit up and take notice.

John E. Dempsey, secretary of the Independence League, has been very busy during the past week calling on the members of last year's executive committee, and he finds much enthusiasm. A meeting is to be held next Friday, and arrangements are now being made to make this a lively opening of the campaign in this city. Mr. Dempsey said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

Enthusiasm for Hisgen.

"I find a very strong sentiment in this city in favor of Mr. Hisgen for Governor among both Republicans and Democrats. Especially is this true among Democrats, for they tell me they will not stand for Whitney and they are not very enthusiastic for Bartlett.

"It is a sure thing that a lot of the Democrats I have talked with will not stand for Whitney, anyway."

POMEROY UNCHANGED BY 31 YEARS IN DUNGEON

CHILD SLAYER STILL FEARED BY GUARDS, AND NEVER SEEN BY VISITORS.

To-day worked exactly thirty-one years of life in the Charlestown State Prison for Jesse Pomeroy, one of the most noted murderers in the history of this country for his awful atrocies committed in 1876.

Even this gruelling dose of penal servitude, which those familiar with prison matters say should break the spirit of any normal human being, has had no effect whatever upon the man who hacked little girls and boys to pieces when himself at the tender age of fourteen, terrorized Boston many years ago. He is still the most disliked and feared person in the State Prison, and now is never allowed to leave his cell except for a few minutes' walk in the prison yard.

Pomeroy's life is a dreradful existence, with only the narrow limits of his 8 by 16 cell as his workroom, sleeping room and exercise room. A great treat for Pomeroy is a walk in the prison yard—a privilege which other prisonersr enjoy every day—and this luxury is accorded him only when his actions are unusually satisfactory.

The history of James Pomeroy is lengthy and shocking. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in early youth for a series of horrible crimes. He began by torturing little children. He was finally run down and sent to the House of Correction. Released later, he went to his old tricks, and this time committed murder, horribly mutilating and killing a little boy and girl.

That was thirty-one years ago. To-day, a well-read, well self-educated and clever man, forty-five years old, Pomeroy maintains a demeanor of dogged sulleness, and like some dangerous beast is carefully watched and tended. He takes a great interest in all criminal matters, and particularly in cases similar to his own.

During his stay at the prison Pomeroy has made several attempts to escape and made so much trouble that he has alienated from him every soul within the grim old walls. No one except keepers are ever allowed to see him.

The prisons of the United Staes hold many dreadful characters, but few there are, it is said, who would not yield to the dose Pomeroy has had of solitary confinement in dungeons, days alone in his cell, deprivation of rations—all the various methods of punishment in the prison code. Pomeroy still remains Pomeroy. After thirty-one years he shows no signs of remorse.

DENNISON BACKED BY MACHINE IN ALL WARDS

MAYOR'S FRIENDS SEEK, FIRST OF ALL, THE DEFEAT OF DIST. ATTY. MORAN.

The nomination papers on file at the Democratic City Committee show conclusively, as stated in yesterday's BOSTON AMERICAN, that the Fitzgerald machine is determined to oppose District Attorney John B. Moran for re-election. Delegations opposed to Moran and presumably favorable to the Fitzgerald-Coakley-Corbett candidate, Joseph A. Dennison, Moran's former assistant, are on file from every ward in the city.

Daniel H. Coakley, Dennison's brother-in-law, heads a set of delegates from Ward 25, Brighton, and Dennison's friends head delegations in many of the wards. Martin P. F. Curley, Harry Nawn's henchman, foreman of the grand jury for the first six months of this year, who antagonized the district attorney, heads the Ward 21 delegation. Not a ward is pledged to Dennison, the machine evidently fearing to make a fight in the primaries with his name.

Use Campbell As a "Blind."

"Jim" Doyle," the indicted superintendent of streets, pledged his delegation from Ward 12 to John R. Campbell, assistant clerk of the Superior Criminal Court. Campbell's name is used as a blind for Doyle. He declared for Dennison several weeks ago and will be with him to a finish.

The anti-O'Connellites in Ward 20 have also filed a delegation pledged to Campbell. The O'Connell ticket is unpledged, but will, it is understood, be favorable to Moran.

Although District Atorney Moran has repeatedly declared that he does not want the nomination of the Democratic or any other parties, his friends have filed delegations in his behalf in twelve wards of the city, although the delegations are marked as pledged to him in but four wards, Wards 2, 7, 11 and 19.

Seek Defeat of Moran.

The Fitzgerald machine and its candidate, Mr. Dennison, have no hope of the latter's election. They believe that if Dennison can win the nomination the Republican candidate will be elected with Moran running as an independent. It is the defeat of Moran particularly and the election of Dennison that is desired, according to a statement of one of the Mayor's lieutenants.

All doubts that James Donovan would contest with Sheriff Fred H. Seavey were set at rest when the complexion of the delegations filed for the county convention was seen. Friends of Donovan and Seavey both have delegations filed in almost every ward of the city.

With troubles of his own on his hands, Mayor Fitzgerald evidently believed that he could not afford to support "Tom" Grady against Councillor Edward P. Barry, and the Ward 6 man filed for the House instead. In Ward 3, Charlestown, one county delegation is favorable to Arthur W. Dolan for register of probate and another to Election Commissioner "Dave" Shaw for sheriff. There is a break in Ward 3 this year between Senator James J. Mellen and Joseph J. Corbett, who have worked together politically for years. Mellen says he will show Corbett who controls the ward. Richard Sullivan has a pledged delegation for register of probate in Ward 19.

Eight Bartlett delegations were filed in all. They were from Wards 2, 5, 11, 15, 18, 20, 21 and 25. The Fitzgerald leaders from one end of the city to the other are lined up for Whitney, although the "Busy One" himself says he is neutral.

'JIM' DONOVAN IS ANGRY OVER KLOUS LETTER

Former Street Superintendent Donovan Says He Does Not Even Know Coal Dealer.

"Sunny Jim" Donovan, back to-day from his vacation, is wrathy and indignant at the letter written by Morris H. Klous and read this week before the Finance Commission probing Boston's financial distress. He declares he never had any intimate business or political dealings with Mr. Klous, and would not be able to recognize him on the street were he to see him face to face. Furthermore, he declares that never during his office as superintendent of streets did he buy a single ounce of coal other than from the lowest bidder after bids had been duly advertised. He makes a single exception to this sweeping challenge during a coal strike.

According to Mr. Donovan, who was superintendent of streets under Mayor Collins, the letter purported to have been written to Mr. Klous was one of 5,000 similar circulars sent out during his regime in behalf of Daniel F. Flanagan, a candidate for the Board of Aldermen. Here is his statement:

"As for my having given Mr. Klous any business advantage in return for any political support, the records of the street department during my term of office will show that in every instance bids for coal for the department were advertised with the possible exception of that time during a coal strike. Furthermore, I wish to state with emphasis, that in no single instance was a contract for coal awarded to other than the lowest bidder, and then not until Mayor Collins had personally scrutinized and sanctioned the same.

"So far as any political or business intimacy with Mr. Klous is concerned, I would not know him if I met him face to face on the street. I never saw him or came in contact with him more than a few times, and then always at my busy office in connection with departmental matters."

LAURA CARTER IS ACQUITTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Laura M. Carter has been acquitted of criminally receiving $5,000 to hide Chester B. Runyan, who stole $96,000 from the Windsor Trust Company. It took the jury thirty-five minutes to reach its verdict.

After Runyan had disappeared a reward was offered of 10 per cent. of the amount of money recovered, and also of $2,000 for the conviction of Runyan. When Runyan was taken into custody $54,410 was found on him. It was Mrs. Carter who turned Runyan over to the police, and now she has been acquitted of any crime in connection with the stealing of the money. Runyan has been convicted and will be sentenced later on.

BIGGEST LINER RACES LUCANIA ACROSS OCEAN

Lusitania Starts To-day on Her Maiden Trip to This Country.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The great Lusitania, the largest ship that ever put to sea, started to-day on her maiden trip across the Atlantic ocean from Liverpool via Queenstown, and engaged in a championship race with the Lucania which, for a long time, has held the record time for passage between Queenstown and New York.

Great secrecy was maintained by the Cunard Company in regard to the passenger list for the first trip, as it was feared, the officials said, a great crowd of sightseers would cause them much inconvenience upon thel rarrival in Ne wYork.

The greatest ship in 790 feet from stem to stern, and the United States government rushe dthe work on the Ambrose channel in order to make it possible for her to enter New York harbor.

It is said that her passenger list includes the following: Mrs. Potter Palmer, Robert R. Potter, George Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, Richard Croker, Jr., Mrs. Croker, Miss Croker, W. P. Thompson, and Robert Balfour.

THE RAVAGES OF CATARRH

Catarrh is not the simple malady most people imagine it to be. Not only is it disgusting, making a nuisance of its victim, not only to himself but to those about him, but it is a dangerous disease because productive of other conditions, all of them serious, some of them fatal.

Among these diseases may be mentioned Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Deafness, Head Noises, Discharging Ears, Catarrh of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, and to these must be added the deadly Pneumonia.

None of these diseases can occur without first having Catarrh.

Catarrh cannot be cured by the ordinary sprays, washes or salves. Only competent specialists can even help it temporarily. There is one method, however, which we have introduced into Boston that will cure this loathesome disease, and this treatment is the Inhalatorium Cabinet Treatment—painless, pleasant, mild, soothing and healing to the inflamed mucous membranes.

This Inhalatorium Treatment is endorsed by the American Congress on Tuberculosis as a cure for Consumption, and is recommended by many eminent specialists as a positive cure for Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchial Catarrh, etc.

If you suffer from any of these diseases, or if you have only Catarrh as yet, take advantage of the good weather still remaining before winter sets in. Come in, let us examine you and put you under a treatment that will cure you. Take a little care now, spend a little time and money and save much time, much money, great suffering and a shortening of your days.

Remember, "A stitch in time saves nine."

The Old, Old Story Ever New

By Beatrice Fairfax

NOT long ago a German statistician read 130 novels in order to discover the general method of proposing marriage.

We are not told whether the gentleman needed the information for his own purposes or whether he was simply curious as to how other men got round the vital question.

Every girl as she grows up has an idea as to how she would like to be proposed to. Needless to say it is always in the most romantic manner and circumstances.

At fifteen it seems perfectly natural to imagine a man getting down on his knees and declaring his love in impassioned phrases.

Evidently one's ideal in regard to proposals changes imperceptibly, for, when a few years later, the first proposal actually arrives the fact that it altogether differs from one's youthful dreams does not seem to materially detract from it.

What Figures Show

According to the statistics compiled by the German professor about one hundred proposing lovers were accepted and fifty rejected. Of these seventy-two held her hand when they were proposing, sixty-seven kissed her on the lips and only two kissed her hand.

Fifteen of the lovers were so excited that they could not say a word; as many more were a prey to remorse, and seven could not say anything except to thank her.

As to the ladies, eighty-seven already knew that a declaration of love was coming and eighty-two of them fell into the arms of their lovers. Only sixteen of the 150 decided to be sisters.

When a man is in love one would naturally suppose that he would take advantage of the first favorable opportunity that occurred.

But a great many men will let chance after chance slip by through sheer nervousness.

I know of a man who was in love with a girl and apparently was always just on the point of proposing to her. The girl knew he loved her; in fact, everybody knew it, and yet the proposal hung fire.

Friends were always making opportunities for him, and the girl herself helped matters along in an unobtrusive, womanly way.

And where do you think that man finally got his courage up to the proposing point? In a crowded street car, going home from the theatre.

That is a true story, for the girl told it to me herself.

"It wasn't very romantic," she said ruefully, "but he says if he hadn't done it suddenly on the spur of the moment he never could have done it at all."

Know Your Mind

Girls don't seem to take it into consideration that a man is shy about proposing, and yet the average man is exceedingly shy and nervous over it and most sincerely fears and dreads a refusal.

It does not often happen that a proposal comes quite unexpectedly to a girl. It may come a little sooner than she expects, but the girl of any intelligence knows when a man is growing to care for her.

If she means to refuse him, it is very unkind to allow him to propose.

Some men, of course, cannot be stopped and rush on to their fate in spite of the greatest discouragement.

But to allow a man to propose simply for the sake of adding to her conquests is contemptible work for any girl to engage in.

Men do not pine away when they are refused. They may be desperately blue and unhappy for some time, but eventually they cheer up and go a-courting some other lovely damsel and live happy ever after.

So be wise, girls, and be sure of the state of your mind and heart before you refuse a man.

I say this because so many girls write, telling me that they have sent a man away and later found out that they really liked him after all.

Don't accept him unless you are sure you love him and don't refuse him unless you are sure you don't love him. Learn to know your own mind.

Wire Rug and Carpet Holder

WHEN beating carpets or rugs on the line the housewife is presented with a problem. To prevent the rug slipping out of position, after being adjusted, a Massachusetts man has devised a holder. It is made of strong spring wire, the upper portion being curved to fit over the rug. In connection with the four lower corners—which, on account of the tension of the spring wire, are inclined to come together—are prongs which force themselves into the rug. The operator has ample opportunity to stand at a distance from the rug and swing the beater with as great force as desired.

LARGE HATS WILL REIGN THIS FALL

THE new Fall hats continue to follow their mushroom ancestry and have grown in dimensions.

The model here shown is direct from Paris, via a Boylston street shop, and has been copied in various colorings for different heads, with never-failing success.

The original hat is of deep purple velvet, in that new, rich tone, and the enormous bow in the front shows the touch of cerise which is the latest companion of purple.

The feathers are those fluffy, fascinating Marabout affairs in two shades of purple, one to match the hat, the other a bit lighter.

TOMATO KETCHUP.

ONE-HALF bushel of ripe tomatoes. Quarter tomatoes, remove stems; boil until soft and then strain by rubbing through a fine wire sieve. Be sure to get every atom of pulp. Over strained pulp pour one quart cider vinegar, one cup salt, one teaspoon cayenne. Add the following tied in a piece of cheese cloth or sugar bag: Two large onions, finely chopped, one-half package whole mixed spices, one-quarter ounce ginger root, if liked hot. Boil about five hours. This receipt makes eight pints, in color a brilliant red.

No. 124 Oxford street, Cambridge.

LEMON PIE

TO three yolks and one white of egg add four heaping tablespoons of sugar and beat rapidly, add a pinch of salt, the juice of one and one-half lemons and the rind of half of one (grated). Dissolve a heaping teaspoon of cornstarch in a tablespoon of butter which has been melted, and stir slowly into a cup of milk and boil up, stirring constantly. Set in a cool place and when cool pour into the egg mixture. Beat all together and pour into a baked crust and return to the oven and bake slowly. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth with four tablespoons of powdered sugar spread over the pie and brown.

The Boston American Pattern

A Charming Dress for a Little Girl

NO. 5,884—The easy, graceful lines of this frock render it particularly attractive. The blouse is in the popular jumper style, with wide kimono sleeve. The mode is unusually becoming to the childish figure, and is equally suitable for the wash fabrics and light weight woolens. The full skirt is attached to a body lining that closes in the back. The sleeves may be full length or terminate at the elbow. Figured cream colored challis was used for the development, but other materials are adaptable, such as albatross, cashmere, voile, silk, linen and chambray. For a girl of 8 years 3½ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

No. 5,884—Sizes for 6, 8, 10 and 12 years.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents, with size, name and address, to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass., allowing one week for delivery.

Tartans for Traveling

THERE seems always to be some subtle connection between traveling gowns and wraps and fabrics of plaid, or rather tartan design, though it is difficult to discover any reason why checks rather than stripes or spots should be associated with long journeys by sea or land. Still, the fact remains, and it is a picturesque one enough, and the mode for wearing tartans generally, more curiously still, seems to appeal to some of us who do not lay claim to Scotch decent.

Advice to Anxious Sweethearts

By Beatrice Fairfax

WEDDING HINTS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Will you kindly answer me the following questions? I am to be married next month. It is to be a church wedding (at noon); is it proper to have two bridesmaids and one best man, or should each bridesmaid have an escort? Can I have two maids of honor, and if I should, do they need male escorts? Is it proper for them to be in white if the bride intends to? Also, what flowers for the month of September.

J. H. B.

IT is quite proper to have two bridesmaids, but only one maid of honor. There should be a best man to escort the maid of honor from the altar and an usher for each bridesmaid. The bridesmaids may wear any color that they and the bride decide upon. The maid of honor usually wears white. Asters are in bloom in September and make lovely plumy bouquets.

How Tight Shoes Ruin the Health

NEWS ITEM, Chicago—Mrs. Daisy W. Robinson to-day underwent the amputation of her right foot. Tight shoes had brought about tuberculosis of the bones, making the operation necessary to save her life.

NEWS ITEM, St. Louis—Miss Ella T. Long presents a peculiar case to her sisters. The continued wearing of tight shoes has made her almost a helpless cripple. So far physicians and chiropodists have failed to cure her. Swollen toe joints and a score of corns make it impossible for her to walk.

By Anna M. Galbraith, M. D.

Author of Hygiene and Physical Culture for Women.

THE compression of the foot into a rigid body destroys the natural relation of the parts, prevents the growth, interferes with the circulation, compresses the nerves, weakens muscles and ligaments which should support the arch, and is a prolific source of corns, bunions, weak ankles and flat foot.

The excessive elevation of the heels displaces the centre of gravity of the body from the heel to the line of union of the instep with the toes.

With the resulting increased curvature forward of the small of the back is an increase in the prominence of the abdomen, and a resultant disarrangement of the internal organs to which inflammation and congestion come.

Fashion has decreed that the foot must fit the shoe. If you are not prepared to believe this just compare the imprint of your bare feet on the wet sand with the imprint of your shoe.

Won't Wear a Larger Shoe

After a woman has reached a certain sized shoe she positively refuses to wear anything larger. She forgets that the size of the foot increases with use, as do every muscle and every part of the body. She has also forgotten the laws of symmetry, upon which all true beauty depends.

Indeed, it often seems as if the modern woman does not think at all, but leaves all that to her various modistes, bootmakers, tailors and milliners, into whose hands she gives the various parts of her body to be molded like plastic clay.

The modern shoe means that the twenty-six bones and twenty-six joints of the foot have become converted into 104 centres of agony and pain. Woman gives up almost all exercise because it is an exquisite torture. With the foundation destroyed what can become of the house but utter ruin?

Maladies from Tight Shoes

Different specialists tell us of the different maladies for which the tight shoe is responsible.

The surgeon, of the painful operation it has necessitated on the foot; the gynecologist, of more painful and more difficult operations; the general physician, of chronic dyspepsia, thinness of the blood and kidney disease produced by the lack of exercise, given up, forsooth, because walking with these deformed members was all too painful.

Color of Eyes Is Hereditary

THE British Association is asking the public to co-operate in hunting down a secret of which some fascinating hints have just been discovered. The difficulty of investigation is no more than noting down the color of the eyes in the family. In the light of science there are only two sorts of eyes—blue and not blue. Hence appears a strange law of heredity. It is asserted that where both parents have blue eyes all the children have blue eyes; where both parents have brown eyes, all the children have brown eyes; but it is where the parents differ that this alleged law of heredity is most surprising.

For Stout Women These Simple Exercises Solve the Problem of How to Reduce Flesh

Exercise Is Best of All Known Remedies

FIRST WEEK—Lift the foot until the upper part of the leg is at right angles to the waist and continue for five minutes with each leg in turn.

THERE are many women in the world who are too stout. The most serious thing about the stout woman is her degeneration from the standard of beauty. She soon ceases to be good looking.

For every pound of fat she has added a year to her age. She loses her girlishness, loses her "lines," loses her grace, and ceases to be even stylish. Nothing fits her; nothing looks well upon her.

It was a well-known society woman who, panting in the consulting room of a noted physician, said: "Doctor, what can I do to get thin?"

"Walk, walk, walk—every day," replied the great man, "and don't drink while you are eating."

The advice would have been good if it had been possible to follow it.

But the trouble with the fat woman is that she cannot walk. A long tramp round the park daily would be as impossible as a trip daily to the moon. She actually could not perform it. Her feet and ankles, her legs and her back would refuse to work.

As for going without drink at her meals—well, ask any fat woman how impossible that is! She would choke.

The remedy for the fat woman—and by fat woman is meant one who is really too stout for good looks—is a slow one. She must work by easy stages, noting her progress as she goes along. She must be content with a few ounces off per day—perhaps not even so much—and she must be hopeful.

Exercise First

She must exercise; exercise comes first. Secondly, she must diet; diet plays a very important part in the reduction role. Thirdly, she must massage; massage is very useful if performed in the right way.

A noted specialist who has reduced hundreds of women, principally actresses, singers and society women, has this to say about reduction:

"I begin with the open-air cure for her. I set her walking round, say the square in which she lives. The first day she walks once around; the second day, twice; the third day, three times, and so on.

She keeps it up until she can walk ten or twelve times around the square. Then she goes back and begins all over again, meanwhile taking home exercises and treatment.

"I find my patients nearly all lace too tightly. Their muscles are bound in by steel. Frequently, also, the stout women are tightly clasped about the throat, and I have known them to wear tight shoes. Dressed in this manner she cannot reduce her weight. She must loosen her clothing until the muscles have full play.

"I advise fifteen minutes' swift massage twice a day. Slow massage develops. But the quick, hard strokes will reduce.

"I advise the taking of five-minute home exercises three times a day—not longer, not oftener.

"I advise the eating of vegetables, fruits and light foods without too much starchiness. These, with little meat, will give just the right diet. In the way of drinkables, the stout woman can drink like a fish two hours after meals and two hours before. But no nearer and no oftener.

Breathe Pure Air

"The fat woman should breathe pure air. Hot, close air seems to fatten a woman."

The professional gentleman, had he been so inclined, might have gone further into his professional secrets, which, by the way, consist largely of exercise.

But, as he did not do so, here they are, exactly as told by a woman who was a pupil of his, and who took off seventy-five pounds in a very short time.

The treatment begins with an exercise. This is the walking step. Put on a gymnasium suit, consisting of a blouse and a short skirt; and, with the waist and neck very loosely fastened, walk round the room. Open all the windows wide, place the hands upon the hips, and walk.

The rule is to lift the foot until the upper part of the leg is at right angles to the waist. Five minutes of this work will tire out the stout woman. Bu let her not be discouraged. It is her first day's task.

After she has "walked" five minutes she will be overheated. She must now close the windows, put on dry clothing, and massage.

The massage should be done with the flat of the hand, and should be downward over the hips, using hard strokes, as if one were trying to pound the fat away.

The Second Week

The fat woman's second-week exercises—for she must "walk" every day for the first week—is to stand erect, putting both arms behind her, and lift weights. This will seem impossible at first. But, if she will do as directed, she will have little trouble.

Take two light dumb-bells and tie them to the opposite ends of a skipping-rope. Lift the rope in your hands, and lower them as far at the back as you can.

Do this just six times. In the afternoon try it six times again. Repeat the exercise, walking up and down as you do so, every day for a week, followed by a quick massage of the hips.

The diet should be this: For breakfast, one cup of what one likes to drink; two eggs and one small roll. If preferred, one may take a chop or a cereal. For luncheon, nothing at all except a pint of milk sipped hot. For dinner, supposing the fat woman dines at night, there may be three vegetables, one kind of meat and some green food. Nothing to drink. If thirsty when exercising take a mouthful of fruit.

General Rules.

Begin the third week with the bending knee exercise. Bend one knee double, stretch out the other leg straight, toe flat on the floor.

Place one hand flat on the floor and stretch the other behind. Then comes the side-to-side. Put all your weight on one foot, and bend to one side until your hand nearly touches the floor. Repeat by bending on the other side. Do it many times.

The all-fours movement follows: Stand erect, fill your lungs with good fresh air, then without bending the knees, lean forward until your finger tips rest on your toes. Stand for a second, bend the knees, lay the hands flat on the floor and run around the room on all fours.

Clad in the gymnasium costume, skip the rope. Learn deep breathing. Wear corsets loose. Take hot baths—in bath vinegar is good.

Don't sleep daytimes, and only seven hours at night. Late suppers must be abandoned. Don't eat between meals.

THIRD WEEK—Bend one knee double, stretch out the other leg straight, toe and upper part of foot flat on floor, place one hand flat on the floor, and stretch the other out behind.

New System Works Where Others Go Wrong

FOLLOWING WEEKS—Without bending the knees, lean forward until your finger tips rest on your toes. To begin with the aid of a chair is allowable, but should be abandoned soon.

THE TURN OF THE BALANCE

A Thrilling Romance of American Life---By Brand Whitlock

Synopsis

ELIZABETH WARD, the beautiful daughter of Stephen Ward, a wealthy and influential business man of Chicago, assists her mother as hostess at a fashionable dinner in their own home. During the dinner the guests are startled by a loud scream from the servants' quarters, and Gusta, the trusted and confidential maid of the Ward household, fails to return to her duties of the table. Mrs. Ward informs her guests later in the evening that Gusta has rushed off without word or warning at the news of her father's accident on the railway. Poor Gusta, running breathless to her home, finds tears and desolation, her mother fainting in her son's arms and able to tell nothing except that her husband has been taken, in a dreadful, mangled condition, to the hospital.

Gusta is obliged to stay at home and work. She goes to pay a visit to Elizabeth, who takes her in her carriage to see Mr. Koerner (Gusta's father) at the hospital.

Dick Ward, Elizabeth Ward's brother, visits Gordon Marriott, a young lawyer, whom Elizabeth has interested in the Koerner's case, and takes him to see the injured man, who has been sent home from the hospital.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

KOERNER winced perceptibly at Marriott's mere glance at his amputated leg, and stretched the pipestem over it as if in protection.

"He hurts like hell," he said.

"Why, hasn't the pain left yet?" asked Marriott in surprise.

"No, I got der rheumatiz in dot foot," and he pointed with his pipe-stem at the vacancy where the foot used to be.

"That foot!" exclaimed Marriott.

"Bess told us of that," Dick put in. "It gave her the willies."

"Well, I should think so," said Marriott.

Koerner looked from one to the other of the two young men.

"That's funny, Mr. Koerner," said Marriott, "that foot's cut off."

"I wish der tamn doctors cut off der rheumatiz at der same time! Dey cut off der foot all right, but dey leave der rheumatiz."

He turned the long stem of his pipe to his lips and puffed at it and looked at the leg as if he were taking up a problem he was working on daily.

"Well, now, Mr. Koerner," said Marriott presently, "tell me how it happened and I'll see if I can help you."

Koerner, just on the point of placing his pipe stem between his long, loose, yellow teeth, stopped and looked intently at Marriott. Marriott saw at once from his expression that he had once more to contend with the suspicion the poor always feel when dealing with a lawyer.

"So you been Mr. Marriott, huh?" asked Koerner.

"Yes, I'm Marriott."

"Der lawyer?"

"Yes, the lawyer."

"You der one vot Miss Ward sent already, aind't it?"

A Bargain

"Yes, I'm the one." Marriott smiled, and then, thinking suddenly of an incontrovertible argument, he waved his hand at Dick. "This is her brother. She sent him to bring me here."

The old man looked at Dick, and then turned to Marriott again.

"How much you goin' to charge me, huh?" His little hard blue eyes were almost closed.

"Oh, if I don't get any damages for you I won't charge you anything."

The old man made him repeat this several times, and when at last he understood he seemed relieved and pleased. And then he wished to know what the fee would be in the event of success.

"Oh," said Marriott, "how would one-fifth do?"

Koerner, when he grasped the idea of the percentage, was satisfied; the other lawyers who had come to see him had all demanded a contingent fee of one-third or one-half.

When the long bargaining was done and explained to Mrs. Koerner, who sat watchfully by trying to follow the conversation, and when Marriott had said that he would draw up a contract for them to sign and bring it when he came again, the old man was ready to go on with his story.

But before he did so he paused, with his immeasurable German patience, to fill his pipe, and when he had lighted it he began:

"Vell, Mr. Marriott, ven I gom' on dis gountry, I go to vork for dot railroadt; I vork dere ever since—dot's t'irty-seven year now alreadty." He paused and puffed and slowly winked his eyes as he contemplated those thirty-seven years of toil.

Fortunes of War

"I vork at first for t'irty tollar a month. Den, von day Mr. Greene, dot's der suberintendent dose tays, he call me in, undt he say, 'Koerner, you can read?' I say I read English some, undt he say, 'Vell, read dot,' undt he handt me a telegram. Vell I read him—it say dot Greene can raise der vages of his watchman to forty tollar a month. Vell, I handt him der telegram back, undt I say, 'I could read two t'ree more like dot, Mr. Greene.'"

"He laugh den undt he say, 'Vell, you read dot vun tvicet.' Vell, I got forty tollar a month den; undt in ten year dey raise me oncet again to forty-five. That's purty goodt, I t'ink."

The old man paused in this retrospect of good fortune. "Vell," he went on, "I vork along, undt dey buildt der new shops, undt I vork like a dog getting dose t'ings moved, but after dey get all moved he calls me in von tay, undt he say my vages vould be reduced to forty tollar a month. Vell, I gan't help dot—I haind't got no other chob.

"Den, vell, I vork along all right, but der town get bigger, an' der roadt got bigger, an' dere's so many men dere at night dey don't need me much longer. Undt Mr. Greene—he's lost his chob, too, undt Mr. Churchill—he's der new suberintendent—he's cut ever'l'ing down, undt after he gom' eferbody vork longer undt get hell besides. He cut me down to vere I vas at der first blace—t'irty tollar a month. So!"

The old man turned out his palms, and his face wrinkled into a strange grimace that expressed his enforced submission to this fate. And he smoked on until Marriott roused him.

"Vell," he said, "dot night it snows, undt I start home again at 5 o'clock. It's dark undt the snow fly so I gan't hardly see der svitch lights. But I gom' across der tracks yust like I always do goming home—dot's the shortest way I gom', you know—undt I ben purty tired, undt my tamned old rheumatiz' he's raisin' hell for t'ree days because dot storm's comin'—vell, I gom along beside der segond track over dere, undt I see an engine, but he's goin' on dot main track, so I gets over—vell, de snow's fallin' undt I gan't see very well, undt somehow dot svitch engine gom' over on der segond track, undt I chump to get away, but my foot he's caught in der frog—vell, I gan't move, but I bent vay over to one side—so"—the old man strained himself over the arm of his chair to illustrate—"undt der svitch engine yust cut off my foot nice undt glean. Vell, dot's all der vas aboult it."

"Evidence."

Marriott gave a little shudder; in a flash he had a vision of Koerner there in the wide switch-yard with its bewildering red and green lights, the snow filling the air, the gloom of the winter twilight, his foot fast in the frog, bending far over to save his body, awaiting the switch-engine as it came stealing swiftly down on him.

"Did the engine whistle or ring its bell?"

"No," said the old man.

"And the frog—that was unblocked?"

Koerner leaned toward Marriott with a cunning smile.

"Dot's vere I got 'em, aind't it? Dot frog he's not blocked dere dot time; der law say dey block dose frog all der time, huh?"

"Yes, the frog must be blocked. But how did your foot get caught in the frog?"

"Vell, I shlipped, dot's it. I gan't see dot frog. You ask Charlie Drake; he's dere—he seen it."

"What does he do?" asked Marriott as he scribbled the name on an old envelope.

"He's a svitchman in der yard; he tol' you all aboudt it; he seen it; he knows. He say to me, 'Reinhold, you get damage all right; dot frog haind't blocked dot time.'"

Just then the kitchen door opened and Gusta came in. When she saw Marriott and Ward she stopped and leaned against the door; her face, ruddy from the cool air, suddenly turned a deeper red.

BOY MURDERER HAPPY, BEGINS HIS LIFE TERM

Young Sidney Preble Smiles as He Awakes in Thomaston Jail.

FEARS MEETING FATHER

THOMASTON, Me., Sept. 7.—Sidney K. Preble, the fifteen-year-old boy who was found guilty of killing his chum, Norris W. Heath, in Bowdoinham on May 11, began his life sentence at hard labor in the State prison here this morning.

Prison life seemed welcome to this strange lad, and although he had been told that his sentence meant life behind the prison bars as long as he lived, he seemed happy this morning, and when handed his breakfast a faint smile appeared on his face.

The boy was brought here late last night in charge of a deputy sheriff. It was the intention to bring him here during the afternoon, but the jail officials missed train connections.

During the trip here young Preble seemed very much downhearted and seemed worried. It was later learned that he feared that his father, who had testified against him, would be at the jail, but when told that he would not be present the boy again brightened up.

On his arrival here he ate a hearty supper, after which he was shown to his cell and was quickly in a deep slumber and appeared well rested when the warden appeared at the jail this morning.

It has not been decided as yet just what duties young Preble will have to perform, but he will be given a permanent line of work to-morrow.

UNION LABEL HAS NO CHARM FOR WHITNEY

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 7.—Henry M. Whitney is again in wrong with the Springfield labor unions. Last week four of the Whitney lieutenants dined at the Hotel Worthy, long on labor's list. One of them was quoted profanely when the lapse was called to his attention.

Now it is non-union cigars. Two hundred Democrats who met Mr. Whitney here this week were treated to smokes of the "Caswell Club" and "La Modena" brands, neither of which bears the blue label.

"A man might by mistake drop into a hotel which is on the unfair list," said President William H. Grady of the Springfield Central Labor Union to-day to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, "but how any political buyer could make the mistake of picking out non-union cigars in 1907 is past my comprehension.

"It begins to look as if Mr. Whitney doesn't care very much for organized labor in this territory. Then we will not care for him. There won't be any question as to who will receive the votes of the laboring men. It won't be Mr. Whitney."

It isn't quite clear who purchased the non-union cigars. The name of Matthew R. Mansfield is mentioned.

MEDFORD PASTOR IS DEAD AT HIS HOME

After an illness covering a period of over nine weeks, the Rev. Quillen H. Shinn, D. D., Southern missionary of the Universalist church, Medford, and one of the best known ministers of that denomination in this country, died at his home at Medford Hillside last night.

Dr. Shinn was born in Virginia 62 years ago, and at the outbreak of the war enlisted in the Federal army. He had an enviable war record.

Seasickness Positively Cured

A Wonderful, Harmless Cure for All Forms of Sea and Car Sickness.

For Sale at Drug Stores, Money Refunded if Not Perfectly Satisfactory.

A remarkable cure has been discovered for all forms of seasickness, carsickness, climbing, and all nausea caused by motion, which has positively never failed.

I didn't. I did.

Take Mothersill's Seasick Remedy that positively never fails.

To prove that this remedy is harmless and that it can never produce any bad after effects, an analysis was made by Milton L. Hersey, M. Sc., Chemist for the City of Montreal, and Analyst of the Province of Quebec: "I hereby certify that I have personally analyzed a sample of "Mothersill's Seasick Remedy," purchased by me in the open market in the City of Montreal, and my tests have failed to detect the presence of opium, morphine, cocaine, or any other alkaloid or chloral whatever."

A party of 600 delegates to the International Sunday School Association Convention that went to Rome, Italy, had a supply of this remedy on hand, and not a single delegate was affected with seasickness.

This discovery at last disposes of the prejudice so many people have entertained against the use of medicines as a preventive for seasickness.

Mothersill's Seasick Remedy is sold in 50c and $1.00 boxes at druggists. If your druggist has not got it in stock, send us the money, and we will send you the remedy, all charges prepaid.

Send your name and address to-day to the Mothersill Remedy Co., 132 Cleland Bldg., Detroit, Mich., for interesting information and testimonials from many who have used this wonderful remedy.

Gibson Girl Secrets Revealed by Actress Playing at Hollis St. Theatre

Margaret Rutledge Explains Posing Work.

But why do they call me a Gibson Girl?
Gibson Girl! Gibson Girl!

A Characteristic Pose by a Flesh and Blood Gibson Girl.

Margaret Rutledge as Gibson girl, and Cupid, in the "Belle of Mayfair." Photo also of clever actress and Harry Burcher in another of her poses.

What is the matter with Mister Ibsen?
Mister Ibsen!
Why Dana Gibson?
Wear a blank expression—and a monumental curl,
And walk with a band on your back, then they call you a Gibson Girl.
(Belle of Mayfair).

"How did I become a Gibson Girl?"

Stately Margaret Rutledge, smiling reflectively down from her five feet, nine inches, answered:

"By studying the Gibson pictures, by subordinating myself to the Gibson atmosphere. By trying to inhale the part, so to speak. You know, you must try to really be a Gibson Girl if you are posing for Gibson Girl pictures on the stage.

"Then, of course, there's the posing before a long mirror to get the effects, the acquirement of the Gibson Girl carriage and—O, yes, this is especially important, the head. That is, you know, the way the head is held, the elevation of the facial angle, the eyes, the nose, all that."

She's from Mississippi.

The Gibson Girl, as Boston theatregoers know, is the hit again of "The Belle of Mayfair," which is playing at the Hollis-street Theatre. Every performance the poses of Miss Rutledge, assisted by Harry B. Burcher in Gibson Girl pictures, bring encore after encore.

Boston's last Gibson Girl was Valeska Suratt, whose poses were much admired. Now Miss Margaret Rutledge has the role.

She is American, of course, and what State do you suppose she is from—Mississippi. She feels a bit lonesome.

"I don't know another Mississippi girl on the stage," she says.

She had a chance to understudy the part in Pittsburg last season. This season, when the show took the road she was given the role for herself, quite a venture, she felt.

Must Be Gibsonish.

"I studied the Gibson pictures, of course," says Miss Rutledge, "I try to follow them faithfully. Now, for instance, Miss Suratt, whose Gibson poses made such a hit, did not wear perfectly plain gowns. Hers would be more in a prevailing fashion than mine is. Her hair was Marcelled, too. Mine waves, but I can't help that. I try to dress it as plainly as possible.

"I try to feel the spirit of the picture, of course."

"Do you mean," she was asked, "if you try, in the proposal picture, to look like a girl who was receiving a proposal?"

Miss Rutledge laughed.

"Well, I don't know as I would go just as far as that, but of course, you want to be in harmony with the artist's idea."

"It's hard to give the exact recipe for becoming a Gibson Girl or to tell just how I get the effect. But you must do a great deal yourself in addition to merely standing still and letting people look at you. You must be Gibsonish, that's all."

INTERNAL WAR IS NOT FEARED BY SHOE UNION

—JOHN F. TOBIN

"We Are Glad to Get Rid of the Seceding Branches," He Declares.

Far from being alarmed over the secession of the Lynn Lasting Machine Operators' Union No. 260, or the probable secession of the Brockton Lasters Union No. 192, President John F. Tobin of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union stated to an American reporter to-day that the only fear entertained by the main body was that the secession of the Lynn body might not be permanent and that the Brockton body might not secede.

"We are very glad to get rid of them," Tobin said to-day, "they represent to us the undesirable element in this union. They were proven to be dishonest in regard to recent elections, and they are all, nearly all, very radical members—men not favorable to the proper and dignified conduction of a large organization. I repeat, all we fear is that we are not entirely rid of them."

President Tobin further said that he did not expect many unions to follow in the footsteps of the disgruntled bodies.

"They will starve to death before they are through," Tobin continued. "The manufacturers will scalp them at the first opportunity. They haven't the chance of a snowball in Daniel's fiery furnace."

The seceding of the Lynn body, which occurred yesterday, follows the action of the Toronto convention in supporting Tobin, and those in authority, when they were confronted with charges of election frauds, and depriving Hicks and Murray of their union rights of office holding on identical charges.

In regard to the possibility of signing new contracts and other inconveniences, President Tobin stated that all contracts made by the succeeding operatives before secession, to which the union was a party, would be honored by the main body.

President Tobin was very positive in his statement that no conciliatory action by the main body would be taken.

HAVE YOU SEEN MAN WEARING BIG SOMBRERO?

Wealthy Miner Mysteriously Disappears While on Visit to Hub Brother.

The police of Boston, New York and Chicago are to-day searching for Frank Austin, a wealthy Central American mining expert, who, after paying his brother, Andrew Austin, of No. 50 Granger street, Dorchester, a visit of but two days, disappeared, and no traces of him have been found.

On Sunday last, while Andrew Austin and his family were at dinner, Frank, whom they had not seen for more than thirty years, rushed into the house. He was attired in a corduroy mining suit with bright trimmings, wearing a large sombrero and heavy shoes. After discussing the happenings of thirty years, Austin retired.

Tuesday afternoon, in company with his brother Andrew and a cousin, Irving Brown, he went to a Boston theater. During the performance, Frank Austin complained of cramps and left the playhouse, telling his brother that he would return shortly. From that time to this, not a word has been heard from him.

Where he is now is a mystery that the police are trying to solve. They fear foul play as the missing man had several thousand dollars and a very expensive watch and chain on his person at the time of his disappearance.

Austin is described as being about five feet eight inches in height and weighing about 150 pounds. His face is very thin and his hair almost gray. He wore a black coat and vest, corduroy trousers, heavy shoes and a large sombrero.

The police of this city have been unable to locate him in any hospital, and fearing foul play have enlisted the aid of the police of other cities. Austin, who has spent the greater part of his life in Honduras and Mexico, has acquired a vast fortune. He has another brother living at No. 42 Fenton street, Dorchester.

HOLD UP AND ROB DOCTOR

To-day the police are seeking three highwaymen, who held up and robbed Dr. Walter E. Copithorne, of Natick, near Otis Wharf, Atlantic avenue, last evening.

The doctor was struck a stinging blow, which knocked him down. The robbers went through his pockets and stole his gold watch and chain, then made off hurriedly, leaving their victim lying on the sidewalk.

When the doctor got on his feet he couldn't find his hat, but made his way to police headquarters, where he reported the affair.

PROVIDENCE WOMAN BECOMES A BARBER

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 7.—A barber's apprentice license has been granted a woman for the first time in the history of the State. The young woman is Mazie A. Niles, of No. 51 Warren street, who is an attractive girl nearly twenty years old, who up to yesterday was cashier in a barber shop.

BLOODHOUNDS HUNT ROBBERS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 7.—Detectives with bloodhounds are on the trail of bandits who held up a Rock Island train near Murdock. It is known that the three robbers were in Lincoln within twenty-four hours. One of the three joined the other two here, coming from Alvo. The trail of the robbers has been discovered a short distance from Alvo.

The Rock Island's Rocky Mountain Limited was thundering along just before daybreak, when the bandits, who had boarded it as regular passengers, went through the Pullman car, robbing every passenger. The men were masked and they took purses and jewelry.

$2,500 A NIGHT FOR CARUSO.

VIENNA, Sept. 7.—Enrico Caruso will sing four evenings at the Vienna Opera House, beginning October 10. He will receive $2,500 a night. All the seats have been sold already.

CONSTITUTION WILL STAY IN BOSTON YARD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The protests of Boston have been answered. The matter of the removal of the old frigate Constitution from the yard at Charlestown has been indefinitely postponed.

No orders for the removal of the Constitution from its berth in the waters of the old Bay State are contemplated at this time, says Acting Secretary Newberry of the Navy Department.

The agitation now in progress in Washington and Annapolis for the removal of the Constitution to Annapolis has been responsible for the story that orders had been issued to that effect.

At one time Acting Secretary Newberry undoubtedly seriously considered orders for the removal of [illegible] vessel, but the strenuous protests [illegible]sachusetts have carried such weight [illegible]r a time, at least, the frigate will [illegible]t her moorings near her birthplace.

The academy a[illegible]polis wants the vessel as an addition [illegible]its show attractions, and incidentally for use in instruction of the naval cadets, but the plan to take the warship away from Boston has failed.

BIG SUIT FOR KILLING WIFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Papers in a suit for $50,000 against Charles Scheuer, leather merchant, owner of an automobile, who was out of town at the time his chauffeur ran over and mortally injured Mrs. Catherine Barry, wife of Patrolman Martin Barry of the Thirty-first Precinct, August 2 last, have been filed in the Surrogate's Court.

The action followed the Coroner's investigation of the case concluded yesterday which resulted in the chauffeur, Peter L. McCue, being held in bond to await the action of the Grand Jury.

1 KILLED, SEVERAL HURT IN TRAIN CRASH

BOTSFORD, Conn., Sept. 7.—In a collision here last night between a freight train and a passenger, George Chambers, fireman of the freight, was killed and several persons on the passenger train slightly injured.

JEWS PREPARE FOR NEW YEAR CELEBRATIONS

With the setting of the sun to-morrow evening will begin the Jewish new year—5668 in the Jewish era—and with it the most important group of festivals of the whole year. The celebration, which is known in the Jewish ritual as Rosh Hashonah, is one of most sacred of the Jewish holidays and continues forty-eight hours.

Repentance and the awakening of the religious spirit will greet the impressive ceremony of the blowing of the schofar, or trumpet, which announces the beginning of another year.

All this week devout Jews have been preparing themselves for one of the greatest events in the church calendar. With the more Orthodox, the services attending New Year's Day will continue for another week, but with all classes of Hebrews means a suspension of everything, except their religious duties.

Cures Drunkards

Mary's Miracle.

The day of working miracles,
I'm sure is far from past,
And now to show you what I mean,
I'll tell you of the last
Great one that happened right to me,
For I was part of it, you see.

You know the life I used to lead—
O God, a living death,
A drunkard of the hopeless kind—
For, scarce a sober breath
I ever drew, and hope and pride
Were lost to me and nearly all beside.

A MODERN MIRACLE.

One friend alone was left—my wife,
God bless her ev'ry hour!
She saved me from a drunkard's grave,
And whiskey's wicked power.
Just how she saved me you shall see—
This is the way she told it me.

When hope was almost dead within
Her faithful, constant breast,
She read of Dr. Haines' Cure,
Then without stay or rest,
She sent for one Trial Sample free,
And gave it unbeknown to me!

I drank of it at ev'ry meal—
I ate it in my bread,
While Mary watched me anxiously,
But ne'er a word she said;
Until one day I stopped to think,
That I had lost my love for drink!

When, quite unconscious, I was cured
My Mary told me all:
It seemed the very act of God,
A modern miracle;
I call it this, because my wife
And Haines' Cure had saved my life.

And now my little story's done,
My ev'ry word is true,
And what this treatment did for me,
The same 'twill do for you;
And wives and mothers—one and all,
Take heart of Mary's Miracle.

Save those near and dear to you from a life of degradation, poverty and disgrace. You can do it by cutting out this coupon.

Free Treatment Coupon

Fill in your name and address on blank lines below. Then cut out this coupon and mail it to Dr. J. W. Haines, 343 Glenn Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio. You will receive in return enough of the remedy to prove to you that it will cure drunkenness in any form. You give it in tea, coffee or food. The drunkard will stop drinking without knowing why. You will also get books and testimonials to prove how hundreds have been saved.

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Having wiped up the floor with the Washingtons in the Friday double-header the Pilgrims are ready to turn a similar trick this afternoon. Two games for one price of admission will be played and a big crowd is anticipated if the weather holds good.

Deacon McGuire will put Kroh, the tall South-paw, in to pitch one game while Morgan, the Buchaneer, will go after the candy in the second. This arrangement is, of course, subject to the permission of St. Louis water, which as a means of putting a ball team on the fritz beats Charley horse, sprained tendons, glass arms and everything else on the calendar to a frazzle.

Young Kroh trained with the Pilgrims at Little Rock last Spring, but he showed a lazy streak in the preliminary period and the championship season was not very far advanced when the management shipped the tall fellow to a bush league. During the Summer Kroh chewed the bitter end of reflection and pitched good ball. He was recalled to fast company recently and joined the Bostons on the recent Western trip. In the games he has pitched for the Bostons he has given a fine account of himself and the Deacon looks upon him with friendly eyes.

Kroh's Opportunity.

To-day the Boston fans will have their first opportunity of seeing the qoungster work under favorable conditions. He was booked for a star performance against the New York Highlanders at the close of the season last Fall. Griffith's men had heard of the tall 'un's prowess and they didn't care to be beaton as they were anxious to make a strong finish in the race. It was duly advertised that Kroh was to pitch against them, so Wee Willie Keeler and team-mate conceived the brilliant idea of putting the left-hander out of business the night before.

They proceeded to do so, but in working out their nefarious scheme they put themselves out of the running also. The result was that neither Kroh, nor Wee Willie nor the other fellow showed up next day for the game. All three were very much to the bad. Kroh has been doing so well that it is perhaps well to let bygones be bygones.

Cy Morgan, the Buchaneer, who will pitch the other game, has made good ever since he was secured from St. Louis and with fair luck he ought to keep a-going this afternoon. Morgan is something of a kidder and if he can kid the opposing batsmen as well as he does his team-mates nothing more can be asked for.

Which of these two Boston pitchers will be pitted against Johnson, the Washington phenom, only Cantillon, the pudgy Washington manager,, knows and he won't tell until the time comes. Johnson has caught the eyes of the experts and they pronounce him to be the pitching find of the year. He is a right-hander, but uses a puzzling side-arm delivery to great advantage. The SUNDAY AMERICAN will have a picture of him to-morrow, so if you are not able to attend the game you may see how he looks while you are eating your Sunday breakfast.

The double-header yesterday went Boston's way. In the first game the locals established a good lead before the battle was half over and won out with plenty to spare. Uncle Cy was on deck and he held the Dregs in the palm of his hand as long as he wanted to. Toward the end he let up and allowed the visitors to fatten their averages. Criger let 'em steal a base or two for good measure. Nothing stingy about Cy and Lou when they are on Easy Street.

Case Pattern was pounded for sixteen hits and he made three wild throws to second trying to catch men napping and these helped some in the Boston scoring.

Touched up Rah Rah Glaze.

In the second game The Dregs started after Rah Rah Glaze as though they meant business. A home run followed by a double in the first inning started the pessimists yelling "Take him out," but there was no need of it. The former collegian settled down in fine style and kept the hits well scattered until the ninth when the Washingtons started off with a couple of singles and began to look dangerous. But the side was retired with only one tally and the locals won out 3 to 2. The finish was just about seasoned right.

Scissors Falkenburg was effective except in the seventh when the locals piled up four hits, beginning with a double by Wagner.

Between the Innings.

Freddie Parent covered centre field 'n place of Denny Sullivan who is suffering from St. Louis water. Freddie was all to the merry on balls that came in front of him, but he wasn't on to those which sailed over his head.

But Freddie's batting eye is O. K. He got in two hits in each game.

Freddie turned his ankle in running to second for a time he thought he would have to go to the hospital again. Luckily he had a stiff bandage on or that game would have put him out of the running for the rest of the season. That will be all about Freddie for to-day.

Falkenburg's countenance is cast like that of an Indian cigar sign. He allowed himself to smile for the first time on these grounds when he soaked Unglab in the ribs during a sessation in the game while time was caled.

There was no delay between game. As soon as the first was finished Glaze went to the box and the second game began.

We are glad to observe that Jimmy Barret has procured a new cap from the club's commissariat. The old one had a rip in the back that was very annoying to occupants of the press stand, to say nothing of the ladies.

Altizer showed up well at first. He gathered in some wild throws in regular Tommy Tusker style.

Thaw got his throws off to second from every angle. Old "Shoddy" also binged the ball in good style, driving in two of the three runs Boston made in the second game.

Nucle Cy had CClymer, the leading batsman of the American League, up a tree in the first game. One short fly to centre and four taps to the infield was all he got from the veteran.

Pattern tried to catch men napping at second base three times and made a bungle of it every time.

Pudgy Joe CCantillion is not so noisy this trip. But he is hustling the time.

The Boston Americans will meet the Providence Eastern League team at Rocky Point to-morrow afternoon. Secretary Hugh McBreen was hustling around after Steele and Madden, the Lynn battery, last night, and also for Danzig, the New Bedford first baseman. He wants all three to call on him to-day and get their uniforms, as Manager McGuire is anxious to give them a tryout against Providence to-morrow.

DONOHUE AND DESHLER ARE TRAINING HARD

There seldom has been a boxing match staged around here that compares with the Donohue-Deshler bout. The men are showing at a meeting at which only the regular club assessment is asked. These two boys are the leaders in the lightweight division of New England, and they are classed by experts as among the best in the country.

Deshler has defeated such capable men as Charlie Neary, Maurice Sayers and Young Erne, while Donohue has the scalps of Harry Lewis, Martin Canole, Amby McGarry and others hanging from his belt. He also has bested George Memsic and a dozen others of prominence in the country. He has been one of the most consistent performers developed in this city, and in his whole career he has suffered but one setback—that a decision to his opponent at the end of a battle of fifteen rounds.

Many members have been added to the Winnissimmet Club's list since the announcement of the meeting between this pair. Both are training hard for the bout, and one of the best boxing engagemens ever seen in this vicinity should be in evidence when these stars get together.

Kid Carter of Chelsea and Johnny Cavill, the lightweight team that gave such satisfaction in a preliminary to Sam Langford and Larry Temple, will meet in one of the bouts next Tuesday night.

N. E. ATHLETES DO GREAT WORK AT JAMESTOWN

JAMESTOWN, Va., Sept. 7.—Great was the showing made by the athletic representatives of New England in the first day of the national track and field championships, as they not only got three firsts and one second and a third., but three junior records also went their way.

Frank P. Sheehan of the South Boston A. A. won the half mile in 1m. 56 2-5s.; James J. Sullivan of the Cathedral A. A. made a new mark of 4m. 30 4-5s. in the mile and Roy Welton of Lawrence was the victor in the five-mile run with a mark of 27m. 10 1-5s. E. L. Farrell of the South Boston A. A. was second in the running broad jump, and James L. Lee of Somerville was third in the five-mile run.

Competent judges say that Sheehan should wory the great Shephard when they meet in the senior half-mile run to-day. Sullivan will start in the senior mile and Welton in the five mile.

LEROY CHOICE OVER SEAVER

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—R. C. Seaver, the Massachusetts State tennis champion, and Robert Leroy, the New York State tennis champion, will meet to-day in the final in the tri-state tournament, the latter being the favorite.

Miss Martha Kinsey of Cincinnatti won the woman's final, thereby earning the right to challenge Miss May Sutton for the tri-state championship.

CRACK CRICKET TEAM COMING

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The crack English amateur cricket team which will tour America sailed to-day on the Lucania. It is the strongest team which has ever been sent from England.

Hesketh Pritchard, the noted author and explorer, will captain the team. Other well-known players in the aggregation are McGregor, known as the best wicket-keeper in England, and the two South African experts, Schwarz and Snooke. The former is the best bowler on the team, and Snooke a splendid bat.

Incident in Doubleheader with Senators

THIS picture shows the result of one of Patten's wild throws to second base in the first game yesterday. The Washington pitcher tried to catch Criger napping in the fourth inning, but made a poor chuck, and the Boston catcher ran to third. A perfect throw might have nailed him there, but as will be seen in the picture, the heave went so high that O'Brien had just jumped for it, and Criger's slide for third got him there easily. Umpire Stafford is seen in the background gesticulating his decision, which was "safe."

JOE GANS' BACKERS SEND ODDS DOWN TO 10 TO 6½

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The pressure of Gans's money made itself felt yesterday, and the betting against Britt changed from 10 to 7 to 10 to 6½. The men who make a business of holding wagers account for this by saying that it was the "big money" awaiting investment that caused the switch.

Several commissions amounting to thousands of dollars were placed with the middlemen by backers of Gans, and orders were given to loosen up if necessary in order to get action. It was a busy day at both camps.

Gans went over the Fruitvale roads in the morning, and in the afternoon did an hour of solid work indoors. He devoted his attention to punching the bag and pulley weights and had an earnest session with the big sawdust sack, a piece of equipment which permits of a boxer testing the strength of his blows without fear of injury to his wrists or knuckles.

Jimmy Britt entertained a large crowd as usual at Shannon's in the afternoon. He put in an hour at mixed exercises, which included the usual light sparring with Madison and Horner and the tugging and thumping with the sturdy Kreling.

Britt, like Gans, will arrange his plans so that he will have nothing to do but fight on Monday. He has selected Spider Kelly, Tiv Kreling and Frank Rafael as his seconds in the contest for the world's lightweight championship.

MAGISTRATE PRAISES MANLY ART

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The four men taken in the raid of the Longacre Athletic Club bout at Nos. 158-160 West Twenty-ninth street Thursday night were arraigned before Magistrate Finn in Jefferson Market Police Court and discharged. They were Harry Stone and Al Carey, the participants; the referee, John Pollock, and "Mike" Newman, manager of the club.

In the course of the proceedings, Magistrate Finn said: "I do not know why gentlemen should not assemble peaceably to engage in athletic contests. It seems to me that these things ought to be encouraged instead of proscribed. I think the young men of the country ought to be encouraged in all athletic pursuits—we may need them one of these days. We may get into a war in which we will need all the strong and virile young men we can get.

"Instead of pursuing these young men, you officers ougat to be out catching some of those blackjack users, or some of those people who throttle women to death in hallways.

"I think boxing is the grandest exercise in the world.

"Give my regards to your inspector, and tell him I think he has overreached himself in this matter; and tell him if he gets his orders from certain gentlemen who are over him, that it is too bad he hasn't got a policeman over him who knows the law.

"You ought to have a policeman at the head of your department, and not those gentlemen over at headquarters who don't know they're alive, in my opinion, who tell you to go out and do certain things against the citizens who pay them and pay me. It is wrong. These men are protected by law, and I think they have an action against your inspector for arresting them last night.

"They are discharged."

MOTORISTS MEET AT NEWCASTLE

By J. C. Kerrison.

THE WENTWORTH, NEWCASTLE, N. H.—Sept. 7.—This famous hostelry, once the scene of international peace conferences, and all that goes with such momentous meetings, is now in the hands of the motorists of Massachusetts. These men and women to the number of over 200 arrived here yesterday afternoon and evening, and are continuing to come in order that they may enjoy the pleasures to be derived from this, the first meeting of the members of the clubs affiliated with the Massachusetts State Automobile Association. The largest club contingent is that of the Bay State Automobile Association whose president is chairman of the State Committee for this meeting and the club has at least 100 members on the ground, while the others present represent the Massachusetts, Malden, Springfield, Worcester, Wachusett, Brockton and other organizations in the Old Bay State.

The first man to arrive at the scene of the festivities was Secretary James Fortescue of the association, who arrived here yesterday noon, coming over the road with Frank Hall, mine host of the Wentworth, who is doing his utmost to make every one feel good and happy. An hour or so after him came President Speare and party, and then all afternoon and up to this time parties have been arriving in rapid succession.

The leading motorists of Massachusetts are now here, there not being a club in the State but what is represented by some of its officers.

There was nothing special on the programme for last evening, it being given up entirely to the reception of the guests. This morning, however, things started out good and fast, several impromptu tennis matches being held on the hotel courts, while golf was engaged in on the links by those who know how to drive the elusive sphere as well as handle a motor car.

Later in the morning a real good old fashioned ball game was played between two teams; one representing the B. S. Q. A. and the other the allied clubs of Massachusetts. Of course the men from Boston won out. They had to. According to some authorities of greater or less standing, they owned the umpire, the bats, bal's, masks and the chest protector, and so in order to keep peace in the family the honors had to be theirs.

This afternoon there will be a run along the shore and this evening comes the business meeting and banquet of the association, which by the way will be the first meeting of its kind held by the organization which comprises every motor association in Massachusetts.

TOM KEANE OFF FOR SYRACUSE

Tom Keane, the professional coach and runner, leaves to-day for Syracuse, N. Y., where he starts teaching the football candidates the game on Monday. He says he expects to turn out the best eleven that ever represented the university, although this will be his first experience coaching a Syracuse team. He will take the men to Cazenovia, N. Y., for a week's preliminary work when they all report.

Suffering Men!

LET US ASK YOU
a few reasonable questions, and state a few simple facts

You know you should not be your own physician, and when you feel the need of help and advice, is it not your duty to choose a doctor as you do a grocer of a butcher, or any one who supplies what the law terms the necessities of life?

If you believe that "practice makes perfect"—that "experience is the best teacher," why should we not enjoy preference over others, in view of our 60 years' untiring and steadfast devotion to the diseases of men?

What other medical institution has a record to compare to ours?

Our increasing experience each year has added to our skill, our progress and success have been steady and wholesome, so that to-day we are thoroughly equipped with what three-score years of time, of study, improved methods, in fact, all that is absolutely required to cure the disorders peculiar to men can supply.

Give these facts careful and serious thought. Call on us personally, and we shall explain cheerfully our methods, without charge, and arrange suitable terms for the cure of all curable cases of

VARICOCELE NERVOUS DEBILITY
STRICTURE DEPRESSION OF SPIRITS
EXHAUSTED VITALITY

Kidney, bladder, urinary, blood, skin, nervous and constitutional diseases of men, both acute and chronic.

Note—We also extend a welcome to all men who suffer with rupture, piles, fistula, constipation and all diseases of the stomach, intestines and rectum. Send for our treasure house of information on the diseases and weaknesses of men, sent sealed free.

| Flaherty, p. | McIntyre, p. |

BROOKLYN, Sept. 7.—Two games are scheduled here this afternoon between the Doves and the Dodgers. The locals have yet to win a game from the visitors, and they will try hard to capture the remaining contests.

The Bostons will meet the Giants Monday, after which series they will return here for a game, and then they will go to Boston for a few games.

Pitching Selections.

Jeff Pfeffer and Pat Flaherty are carded to do the slinging for the Hub aggregation to-day, while Rucker and McIntyre will probably twirl for the home talent.

The Bostons played a tie game with the Brooklyns yesterday, the score being three all when Umpire Carpenter called the game at the end of the tenth on account of darkness.

Strickleft, the spitball man, pitched for the home talent. The visitors got a run off him in the fifth inning, but didn't seem to have a chance to get another. "Strick" kicked so hard against one of the arbitrator's decisions in the sixth that he was put out of the game.

Rucker "Got His" in Eighth.

Rucker then went to the rubber for the Donovanites. He was hit so hard in the eighth that the Doves got two runs, tieing the game, 3 to 3, which it remained till the end.

Jack Boultes was on the rubber for the Bostons, and he did good work throughout. He only allowed a handful of hits and they were well scattered.

CORINTHIANS PLAY WOLCOTTS

The Roger Wolcotts of Dorchester, champions of the State through their win over the H. A. C. nine of Roxbury, 16 to 1, play the Corinthians at Franklin Field, Dorchester, to-day. The Wolcotts had another game scheduled with H. A. C., but on account of defeating them by such a large score the team refuses to play. To-day's game promises to be a "corker," as the Corinthians are as yet undefeated. The Wolcotts have a few open dates which they desire to fill. C. Broders, Dorchester, is the manager.

MARINE PARK WATER SPORTS.

The water sports which were to have been held at Marine Park, Aug. 17, under the auspices of the City Point life saving crew, will take place this afternoon. A large number of entries have been received for the races.

N. E. LEAGUE CLOSES TO-DAY

Much interest is being taken in the post-season games which will be played between the Worcester, Lynn and Brockton teams of the New England League, which organization winds up its schedule to-day. Each of the three teams will play one single and one double header in each of the three cities. The schedule:

Monday—Brockton at Worcester.
Tuesday—Worcester at Lynn.
Wednesday—Worcester at Brockton.
Thursday—Lynn and Worcester with Brockton at Brockton.
Friday—Lynn and Brockton with Worcester at Worcester.
Saturday—Worcester and Brockton with Lynn at Lynn.

BIG MAINE FAIR WAS FAILURE

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 7.—The forty-sixth annual exhibition of the Maine State Fair Society will come to a close at 10 o'clock to-night, after one of the most unsuccessful weeks in the history of the association. One of the largest and most costly exhibitions had been prepared, but the continued rainy weather, which made it necessary to postpone the fair from day to day, was the sole cause of its failure.

After waiting five days for the drizzling rain to subside, the management of Paine's great spectacle, "The Fall of Pompeii," gave its first exhibition last evening.

Notwithstanding the discouraging situation and the big financial loss this year, the members of the society at the annual meeting voted to pay all premiums and other obligations in full.

The society is now about $20,000 in debt, but the board of management is still full of courage. The debt last year was reduced $2,250, but the loss this year will more than offset the gain last year.

Cold Piano Facts

We don't make any pianos. We don't advertise any special pianos. We have nothing special to say about any piano in particular. The Piano Trust is fighting us and we are fighting the Piano Trust tooth and nail. We ask no mercy—we expect none—and we give none. Trust pianos are fine, in fact some of the finest pianos in the world are in the Trust, and we sell these same pianos every week at Trust-fighting prices—Lower, away lower by many dollars than you can buy them any place in this wide world. We lose money, they say. Well, that's our business. What do you care? You buy while the fight is on; never mind our losses. We'll take care of ourselves. Come this week and see the fight.

Be One of Nietzsche's "Yes Sayers"

If You Say "Yes" the Right Way, and Really Mean It, You Can Succeed

An old grandmother told a small boy that the hardest word in the language was a word of two letters—"NO."

Perhaps our readers remember an editorial about this word "NO" and the old grandmother's advice. Out of a million men more than nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand are unable to say "NO" at the right time.

When that editorial was published the Rev. J. R. Henry wrote, asking that we publish another editorial on the word "YES."

Here is the editorial that the reverend gentleman asks for.

Editorials and other things written are only valuable if they make people that read them THINK. Suppose you were asked to write about the word "yes," what would you say? Think that over and answer it before you read the rest of this column.

A famous and extremely crazy German philosopher, Nietzsche, wrote about men whom he called the "Yes Sayers." The world is divided into "yes sayers," who form a very small class, and others who, instead of saying "yes," spend most of their lives saying, "I don't know," or "I am afraid not."

You can often tell by looking at a man's face whether or not he knows how to say "yes" and MEAN it.

The face of the "yes sayer" is the strong face, and it belongs to the man that goes ahead and stays ahead.

Some men are born able to say "yes" or "no" at the right time. Others die without knowing how, and still others learn how through bitter experience.

It is the power to say "yes" that gives a man courage—or perhaps it EXPRESSES courage.

You know how the child and the grown man are forever asking questions of themselves, of others and of destiny.

And, as we question fate, or destiny, or experience, so conditions around us question US.

"Can you control yourself?" asks Destiny. Lucky the man who can answer YES.

"Can you get up and go on after you have been knocked down?" is another question. You can tell, by his face, the sort of man that can say "yes" truthfully.

Do YOU ever go through ONE whole day without asking yourself some question that implies DOUBT of yourself?

How often do you ask yourself whether life is worth while?

How often do you ask whether it is WORTH WHILE to go on struggling, trying to do your duty, trying to keep up courage, trying to face repeated disappointments?

You will fight more easily and win more quickly if you can teach yourself to say "YES."

Always the small demon of doubt is hovering around, trying to persuade you that you cannot win the race, that it is not worth while, or that you have not a fair chance.

Always the desire to stop, to give up the effort, keeps asking you whether it is all worth the trouble.

Your salvation is in the word "yes" said vigorously and meant absolutely.

Here is a catechism for the "yes sayer," the man who will succeed. If you can learn it by heart and say it with conviction, you will be one of the human beings that push the world forward by developing humanity's one great asset—WILL POWER.

If others have borne up under disappointment can you bear up? YES.

If men and women were brave enough to deal with the hard discouragements of other days, can you not fight against the easier conditions of to-day? YES.

Is it not clear in your mind that no man is beaten UNTIL HE ADMITS THAT HE IS BEATEN? YES.

Has not every good man been down in the depths, and has he not risen because he refused to stay down? YES.

If you can say "yes" to every questioner who doubts your courage, if you can say "yes" and MEAN it whenever you question your own mind as to your staying power, YOU WILL WIN.

The world is full of weak, vacillating creatures. More than half of us cry before we are hurt, and nine-tenths of us howl when we are hurt a little.

The average man says "I don't know," or "I guess not," and that reflects his weakness and foretells his failure.

Join the limited organization of "Yes Sayers."

Is fighting worth while?

Is honor worth while?

Does the good man win in the end?

Does truth-telling pay?

Is it worth while for me to try where others have failed?

To these and all such questions learn to answer "Yes" promptly and with sincerity. You will not fail, for everything is in the will.

Excellent Literary Advice

It Is Needed by All of Us

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

We received the following communication, typewritten. We do not know whether the writer intends his rebuke for this column especially, or for the writing world in general. Whatever his intentions, we print his admonition gladly.

> In promulgating your esoteric cogitations, and in articulating your superficial sentimentalities, amicable, psychological, or philosophical observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosities. Let your extemporaneous proceedings possess a modified conciseness, a compacted comprehensibleness, a coalescent consistency, or a concatenate cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of garrulity, asinine affectation, or jejune babblement; in other words, talk plainly, clearly, say what you mean, and mean what you say, and above all things do not use large words.

Plain talking and thinking are important. What every useful writer looks for is the shortest cut to human understanding. The man who uses ridiculously long words is, as a writer, closely related to the intoxicated gentleman who walks home in circles and zigzags.

The contribution published above emphasizes the point extremely well in the sudden transition from bad English to good English. His contribution is not original. But a GOOD thing copied is better than a poor original.

By Wex Jones

I.—The Shirt Front, by Robert W. Chambers.

JARVARD walked gayly along the avenue, his heart beating merrily beneath the snowy bosom of his shirt, for Jarvard was joyous with young romance and old bourbon.

"Hello!" said Jarvard in his well-bred tones.

From a fire-escape above his head hung a fluttering object which closer inspection showed to be a well-bred young girl swinging by her ankle, which was caught in a perfectly well-bred way between the bars.

Jarvard leisurely climbed the fire-escape.

"I will marry you at 3 o'clock," he remarked to the girl.

"You're on," replied the girl in a low, well-bred voice; "only make it 3:30, so that I can get another pair of shoes. The heel of this one (she smiled deliciously) is a trifle busted, you see."

Jarvard smiled his quiet, well-bred smile and deftly disengaged the shoe.

Hand in hand the girl and he walked along the avenue.

"By the bye," said the girl in her creamy, well-bred voice, "let's tell each other our names."

II.—Brag, the Cariboo Ram, by Ernest Hyphen Seton Hyphen Thompson.

Brag stood upon a pinnacle of rock.

A single glance at the tell-tale tracks in the snow told him that a Boston man with large feet had hidden behind the rock with the intention of shooting him.

Sinking to the ground Brag rolled himself into a little oval ball, which bore an extraordinary resemblance to a bean.

Well did Brag know that a Boston man would never shoot at anything that looked like his national bird.

III.—Mulvaney's Fit, by Rudyard Kipling (old style).

Clickety-clack, clickety-clack!

The crank of 1,071356a was talking to the thrust-block.

"Do you think the new piston will last?" asked the crank.

"Not on your life," answered the string-piece.

Clickety-clack, clickety-clack!

The steam steering gear was in an uproar. The carbureter was arguing with the shafting and the clinkaclank was at grips with the monkey-wrench.

Crash!

They had run into a tombstone and 1,071356a had found herself.

V.—The Lesson, by Rudyard Kipling (present style).

Now this is the way of the warring, you will land right square on your back,
If you stay for the whisking bullet and it hits you a smarting smack.
For woe to the foolish people who would make life happy and fair
When they ought to be volunteering and learning to shoot and swear.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Says That Any Sort of Earthly Inheritance Can Be Overcome by Cultivating Character

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

GOD made love, and man made marriage.

Marriage properly conducted is the best thing man has done for the earth. It is the anteroom to paradise.

From where I am sitting to-day I look on the roofs of five homes, wherein marriage has proven a beautiful success.

In four of these homes there are charming children, who love and honor their parents, and who are a pride to them. In the other home, death took away the only child, but the sorrow seemed to make the tie stronger and more holy between the hearts of the husband and wife, who are lovers still in mature life.

In all these five homes there is love, respect and happiness.

There are many such marriages, thank God, in the world to-day.

The majority of marriages are happy.

It is only the noisy minority we hear.

When Marriage Fails

BUT when marriage is a failure, and when it is based on false structures, it is purgatory.

And it is an immoral atmosphere in which to bring forth and rear children.

Such children, born of loveless and discordant parents, are in God's statute books written down as illegitimate.

For love only can excuse birth.

An adopted girl has recently learned that she was born of an unwedded mother; a deserted and betrayed woman, who loved not wisely but too well, and who died when her child was an infant.

The girl is making herself morbidly unhappy over the discovery.

She feels she has no right in the world.

She talks about a "horrible stigma" on her life.

She thinks she is unfit to associate with "respectable" people.

All this is very morbid and very foolish.

Since the Great Cause fathered her, and permitted her to BE, she has a right to live, and she has the opportunity to make herself a blessing to the world.

Since her mother carried love in her heart for the earthly father, however unworthy he proved himself to be, this girl is more divinely generated than many children born of wealthy and aristocratic parents, where hatred, disgust and discord dominate the home.

During His lifetime, and for years afterward, Christ was regarded by many people as the "illegitimate" child of his mother, Mary.

Suppose He had become morbid and miserable, and believed He had no right on earth. What a message of love and glory the world would have missed!

People of to-day believe that Christ had a human father, but that He was in His last incarnation, and nothing but the divine was expressed in Him, and so He was truly the "Son of God," the most illustrious Son of God, leaving a trail of light and love wherever He passed.

Same Upward Path

ALL human beings are on that same upward path to perfection.

It requires many lives in many forms to reach the ultimate goal and become ONE WITH GOD. But all will attain it in time.

It makes but little difference, rightly considered, through what earthly parents we reach earth; if we realize our divine inheritance and our divine possibilities.

Any sort of an earthly inheritance can be overcome and lived down, and only the individual example of the soul remembered by the world.

It is a wicked waste of time to dwell on unhappy thoughts about some fancied stain on the family name.

Nothing matters in life but CHARACTER. And that we can build as we choose. The material is within ourselves.

Those who were generated in Love usually possess an abundance of the material to begin with if they will use it for the right purposes.

Saviours of the World

HE whose heart is full of tenderness and truth,
Who loves mankind more than he loves himself,
And cannot find room in his heart for hate,
May be another Christ. We all may be
The Saviours of the world if we believe
In the Divinity which dwells in us
And worship it, and nail our grosser selves,
Our tempers, greeds, and our unworthy aims
Upon the cross. Who giveth love to all,
Pays kindness for unkindness, smiles for frowns,
And lends new courage to each fainting heart,
And strengthens hope, and scatters joy abroad,
He, too, is a Redeemer, Son of God.
